Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Or face reapplication process

Plans for hospital branch must get state OK by Oct. 1

by JOE FRANZ

Time has become a critical factor for the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Hospital to be located between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

If plans for the $11.3 million facility are not approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health by Oct. 1, hospital backers may have to reapply and could have difficulty obtaining approval.

According to a new state law, any hospital that does not have final approval by Oct. 1 will have to go through the state's entire planning process.

Plans for the satellite facility already have received preliminary approval and state officials are now reviewing final engineering and architectural plans.

NORMAN DAVIS, a consultant to the hospital, said Monday he does not expect difficulty in gaining state approval by Oct. 1. State officials would not say when they will finish reviewing plans, but one architect predicted final approval could come as early as next week.

Davis admitted, however, if approval does not come before Oct. 1, and his clients have to reapply, there could be problems in gaining state approval under the new legislation.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show the state that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

"Under the old way, when the hospital licensing board gave approval, need was not taken into consideration," Davis said. "And with this new law we might have difficulty proving the need for a hospital because of the formula that will be used by the state."

State officials have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area because several area hospitals are not filled to capacity.

WILLIAM EWING, health planning associate for the state Comprehensive Health Planning Division, said the ramifications of the new law will not be known until a state board is appointed to interpret the legislation.

Davis said if state approval comes before Oct. 1, his clients plan to break ground for the new 220-bed hospital by late fall.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling and across from Carl Sandburg School. Property for the project includes two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $500,000.

PATRICK DEMON, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital eventually will be annexed to Wheeling. The property cannot be annexed now because it does not adjoin Wheeling's boundaries.

Davis Monday said the facility will be called Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Community Hospital. Hospital officials recently said the facility would be called Buffalo Grove Community Hospital.

The facility is designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

'Goal is more efficiency'

Trustees interview third, final consulting firm

The Wheeling Village Board Monday night interviewed the third and last consulting firm it is considering hiring to conduct a comprehensive study of village operations.

John C. LaFlamme, representing Yarger and Associates Inc., told the board if his firm is hired it will look at every aspect of the village operation and then make recommendations.

"Our primary goal is to get you more efficiency for less money. We want to show you how to improve the level of service so residents get more for their tax dollar."

He said the study would take from three to four months and cost $8,500.

In the past few weeks the village board also has interviewed Callaghan and Co. and Booz, Allen and Hamilton, two other firms being considered for the study.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he does not know when the board will reach a decision on whether to hire one of the consulting firms.

The study recently was proposed by Trustee Donald Jackson as a result of the scandal in which six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials were indicted by a federal grand jury for shakedowns of local developers.

Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are now serving time in a federal prison. Jackson said he hopes the study will help prevent similar scandals in the future.

Sound equipment stolen by burglars

Phonographic equipment valued at $1,050 and $350 in cash were stolen last week from the Thomas E. Dase residence, 824 Old Willow Rd., Wheeling Township, County Sheriff's Police said Monday.

The burglary occurred sometime between 10 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Sept. 10, police said. Numerous record albums, a cassette tape deck, a receiver and a turntable were among the stolen items.

Man seized in robbery of National

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man armed with a starter pistol was apprehended by Buffalo Grove police shortly after a hold-up Monday afternoon at a National food store in Arlington Heights.

Thomas P. Harvey, 730 Beau Dr., was charged with armed robbery. Police said he had $357 and a starter pistol that used only blanks in his possession when he was arrested.

Arlington Heights police said Harvey demanded money from the service desk at the grocery store, 100 E. Rand Rd., and left with $357 in a paper bag.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police saw a car matching the radioed description of the robber's vehicle northbound on Buffalo Grove Road at 2:12 p.m., minutes after the holdup.

Gozdecki chased the car to McHenry Road near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling, where he was assisted by Patrolmen Dennis Cassidy and Jack Koenig of Wheeling police in making the arrest.

Bond for Harvey was set at $10,000. He is to appear Oct. 4 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Halsley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Halsley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 88 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go."

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Hospital branch needs OK by Oct. 1

The proposed branch of Franklin Boulevard Hospital, between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, faces a substantial delay if it does not receive state approval by Oct. 1. That's when the new certificate-of-need law takes effect, requiring hospitals to prove that any new facilities are needed by the public before the state will license them. "Under this new law we might have difficulty proving the need for a hospital because of the formula that will be used by the state," said Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant. He said, however, that he doesn't expect any difficulty in gaining state approval by Oct. 1.

Man, 27, arrested for robbery

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man was captured Monday in Wheeling after he held up an Arlington Heights grocery store, escaping with $357 cash, police said. The man, Thomas P. Harvey, walked into the National Super Market Monday afternoon and demanded money at the service desk, police said. Harvey's car was spotted after its description was broadcast by police and he was caught by Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police near Elmhurst and McHenry roads in Wheeling.

Garbage rate may go up 5%

Laseke Disposal Co. plans to seek a 5 per cent hike in garbage rates in Arlington Heights. The disposal company, in the first year of an exclusive five-year contract with the village, hopes to raise rates from $5.08 to $5.33 a month on Jan. 1. Firm Pres. Henry E. Laseke cited an increase in wages as the main reason for higher fees, and indicated he may be back to ask for more money to offset the rising cost of gasoline and anti-freeze.

Many interested in hospital bonds

Local investors have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer of the Chicago bond house managing the sale said Monday. Minimum investment is $5,000 in the bonds, which are issued by the Village of Arlington Heights, but will be paid off from hospital revenues.

The bond interest will be set Sept. 24 and sales are expected to begin Oct. 17.

New Wilke Rd. ready soon

The extension of New Wilke Road between Golf and Algonquin roads should be completed in about two weeks. The road will become a major north-south artery through Rolling Meadows and be the new boundary between the city and Arlington Heights.

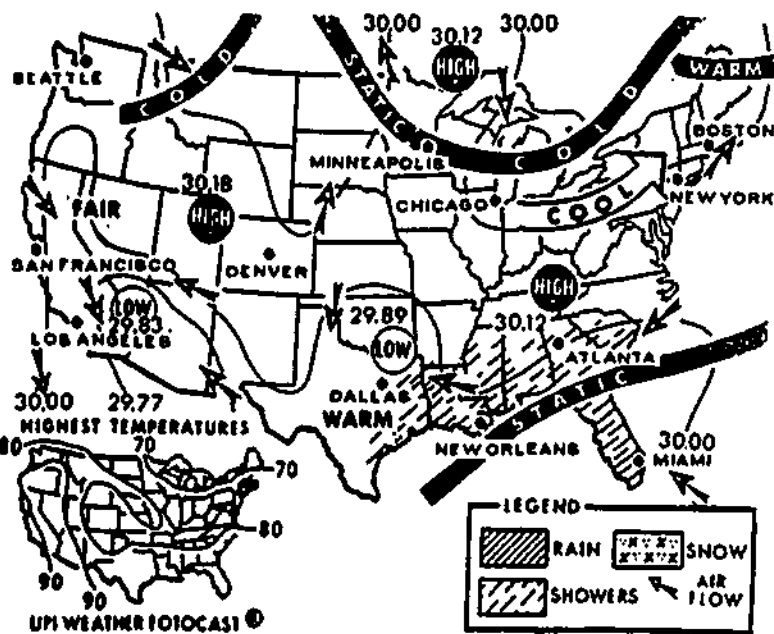

Lottery for Mount Prospect?

A lottery in Mount Prospect? Could be, says Village Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten. Scholten, chairman of the finance committee, proposed a municipal drawing modeled after the state lottery to raise funds. The committee will look into the feasibility of a local lottery after the federal investigation into the legality of lotteries is completed.

New public works director

Robert H. Miller of Arlington Heights has been appointed director of public works and head of the engineering department for the Village of Palatine. Miller, 33, replaces James Bennett, who resigned Aug. 30. Miller is a member of the Arlington Heights plan commission and has been employed by the state highway department for 11 years.

Daley anoints county board's first Latino commissioner

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

County Board Pres. George Dunne completed his monotone call for final approval of the Roads and Bridges Committee report.

The time was 10:40 a.m., and Monday the board rifled through routine committee reports, payment of bills and awarding of contracts so efficiently that everything was ahead of schedule.

Dunne looked at the clock. He looked at his watch. He called on the roomful of spectators to reconvene at 11 a.m.

Everyone knew that only one piece of business remained on the board agenda — the swearing in of Irene Hernandez as a county board commissioner. Mrs. Hernandez, the first Mexican-American to gain a board seat, sat behind Dunne throughout the board meeting and was ready to take her oath of office.

BUT, THE GUEST of honor was missing. Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley was coming. His arrival was unannounced but was planned for 11 a.m.

Daley rarely appears at County Board meetings, although his fifth-floor office is only a few hundred yards from the board room.

The mayor's last visit to the county side of the building was to mourn the death of Democratic Comr. Lillian Piotrowski. Daley watched Monday as Mrs. Hernandez became Mrs. Piotrowski's board replacement.

Politically, the Democratic Party was reaching into another ethnic community for votes. The party's new state platform calls for Spanish-American participation in politics.

"This is the first time in history we have had one of our people occupying a legislative county position," a friend of Mrs. Hernandez said during the swearing-in.

DALEY TALKED OF Mrs. Hernandez' "great acts of charity and service" to the Latin-American community. He did not mention her loyal precinct work which started 29 years ago in Chicago's 27th Ward. He did not mention her two former patronage positions — as a secretary for former State's Atty. Daniel Ward and as a bailiff for Circuit Court Judge David Cerda.

Dunne mistakenly called for "Mrs. Cerda's children" to witness the swearing-in, but corrected himself when the audience shouted "Hernandez."

The County Board president beamed when he told the audience that "all of you are glad to see our mayor in fine fettle."

Mrs. Hernandez said little during the event. She pledged "service, communication and cooperation."

No 'tax problem': Fulle

$12,000 'income' was expense repayment

County Comr. Floyd T. Fulle of Des Plaines said Monday that $12,000 of his 1970 income reportedly being investigated by a federal grand jury was reimbursement for his expenses as head of the county GOP's campaign that year.

Fulle denied a Chicago newspaper report that the $12,000 had created a "tax problem" and that he invoked his Fifth Amendment right not to testify before the federal grand jury.

"I've got nothing to hide," said Fulle, Cook County Republican chairman. The grand jury is investigating county zoning, campaign and personal finances of the 14 county board members.

AN EXAMINATION of Fulle's finances showed the $12,000 in extra income in 1970, Fulle said. "I volunteered information about that," Fulle said that he directed the county campaign from December or November of the year before at the request of then-county GOP chairman Edmund J. Kucharski, who was running for state treasurer.

The $12,000 was reimbursement for expenses, Fulle said. "That's only $1,000 a month. The hours I spent ... the out-of-pocket money ... the time driving all over the county. I'd say it was fair reimbursement.

"Unfortunately, I didn't save all the chits (records of out-of-pocket expenses). Maybe I should have. They (the Internal Revenue Service) might say we'll buy $6,000, but you'll have to pay taxes on the other $6,000."

FULLE, WHO SAID he was "acting county chairman" while Kucharski campaigned throughout the state, also was seeking reelection to the county board in 1970.

The $12,000 came from Kucharski's "resources. He gave me the money to cover my expenses. Kucharski confirmed this in June before the grand jury," Fulle said.

Kucharski was unavailable for comment Monday on his testimony. "I was never advised to take the fifth," Fulle said. "I answered every question they put to me."

Fear that a Fifth Amendment plea would force his resignation as party chairman or force him to drop from the county race this year was not a factor in Fulle's decision, he said.

FOLLOWING MONDAY'S county board meeting Fulle also assessed the Chicago mayoral strength of U. S. Atty.

World's Jews begin 10 days of holidays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jews around the world Monday began 10 days of solemn holidays, beginning with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, and climaxing with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

The time is one of reflection and this new year, 5735 in the Jewish calendar, seems especially marked with the vivid memories of the Middle East war of a year ago, when Israel was attacked on Yom Kippur.

President Ford, in a Rosh Hashanah message, paid tribute to the Jewish legacy of justice in the nation.

"Your inheritance of accumulated wisdom and moral precepts makes you strong guardians of the ideals of righteousness, justice and human dignity," Ford said.

"This has given you a special sensitivity to the social needs of each generation."

Jacque Torczyner, chairman of the American section of the World Jewish Congress, said in a message: "As this New Year begins, Jews the world over must carry the torch of peace in dignity and prayer. At the same time (they) must not relax their vigilance to safeguard Israel."

"The world will know we want peace, but not at any price, certainly not under the threat of an Arab oil blackmail."

Ford unveils amnesty-for-service program

From Herald news services

Calling it "an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds," President Ford Monday offered conditional amnesty to an estimated 28,000 Vietnam war resisters in return for up to two years' public service and an oath of allegiance.

Reaction was pretty much expected. Congress was generally favorable; veterans' groups thought it too lenient; and spokesmen for draft evaders and military deserters in Canada and Sweden denounced it, predicting few would accept it.

Under Ford's plan — issued in a special proclamation and two executive orders — conditional amnesty was offered to all those who deserted or evaded the draft between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973, the date the United States withdrew its last soldiers from Vietnam.

Those wishing rehabilitation and freedom from prosecution must surrender to a U.S. Attorney or military official before next Jan. 31. Basically, they will then earn forgiveness by:

- Agreeing to perform "a period of alternate service in the national interest" in such areas as public health and safety

Mansfield recalls days in Navy brig

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield reacted enthusiastically to President Ford's amnesty offer, recalling 10 days he spent in a Navy brig for being AWOL.

"I think I can understand the problem as one who has been AWOL," Mansfield said. "I intend to give the President my full support."

Jobs but not including "the privilege" of military service. Ford set the service period at 24 months but said it could be reduced in individual cases at the recommendation of various designated officials or a clemency board established by the proclamation.

- Taking an oath of "allegiance to the country and its constitution."

A spokesman for the Selective Service, which will administer the alternate service program, said about half the amnesty workers would likely serve in hospitals or homes for the aged or children. He said many others would find work in conservation or with religious service groups.

In addition to social rehabilitation, military deserters will first receive an undesirable discharge — a category considered less punitive than dishonorable — and, upon completion of alternate service, a "clemency discharge" not affording any veterans' benefits.

Ford set up a nine-member Clemency Board to help administer the program. It will deal with the cases of those already convicted of draft evasion offenses or military men already given punitive discharges for unlawful absences.

Ford urged it to give priority consideration to releasing the estimated 130 persons now imprisoned for such offenses.

The White House has estimated there are about 15,500 draft evaders and about 12,500 military deserters at large and eligible for amnesty, including about 4,500 evaders and deserters in Canada.

Ford briefed Congressional leaders on the plan before making it public, and they told newsmen it would have the support of both Congress and the military.

The harshest reaction came from spokesmen in Washington, Canada and Sweden for various expatriate groups — with the plan variously rejected as "a coverup," "absurd," and "a gross miscarriage of justice." What remains to be seen is to what extent the spokesmen speak for the expatriates.

PRESIDENT FORD yesterday signed the order of conditional amnesty for thousands of Vietnam era draft evaders and deserters. Amnesty will be granted in exchange for 24 months public service and U.S. allegiance.

wounds of the United States. "I decided we could not afford in America an extended period of turmoil," he added, noting that Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had estimated it would be a year or more before any Nixon trial could begin.

Ford conceded that Jaworski's office had indicated "some concern" about access to Nixon's tapes and other White House materials that might be needed in forthcoming Watergate trials. Ford said his staff would work with Jaworski's aides to "alleviate any concern they may have."

Asked whether a final chapter could ever be written about Watergate now that Nixon has been pardoned, Ford said there would be a "mass of evidence" from the House Judiciary Committee hearings, Jaworski's office and forthcoming criminal trials.

Ford said there was no comparison between the pardon and his order earlier for conditional amnesty for Vietnam era war resisters, except for the common goal of "healing the wounds of the nation."

Asked about his testimony at vice presidential confirmation hearings last fall that "the public wouldn't stand for" a pardon, Ford said Monday night it had been a reply to a "hypothetical question" and that as President he had to deal with "reality."

500 whites hold anti-busing march in troubled S. Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Five hundred white youths and parents mounted an anti-busing march on racially troubled South Boston High School Monday, but were driven back repeatedly by police on motorcycles, horses and foot.

At least 22 persons were arrested as police dispersed crowds of jeering whites on the third day of a court-ordered plan to integrate Boston's public schools, but a federal judge said he would not order federal marshals to implement the integration plan.

Trouble over the school busing program remained confined to the predominantly blue collar, Irish Catholic area of South Boston.

Two policemen suffered apparent heart attacks, one falling from his horse, while putting down the demonstrations. Both were on the danger list at City Hospital.

A third policeman suffered minor cuts.

The school day ended on a relatively peaceful note as the 87 black children at South Boston high got on four buses with military precision under the personal supervision of Police Commissioner Robert di Grazia. They were escorted home to Roxbury and the Columbia Point housing project by motorcycle police and police helicopter.

All bars and liquor stores were ordered closed in South Boston Monday and at one time police used nightsticks to drive back the cursing, jeering crowds which regrouped as quickly as they were dispersed.

Hundreds of police, spaced 25 feet apart, lined the roads and rooftops along the bus routes. The streets were swept clear of any crowds before children left school.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican Party got its first woman chairman Monday and she promptly told the GOP national committee the party is failing in its efforts to enlist new voters. "It is time to come to grips with the shape we are in," Mary Louise Smith told the national committee members who had just unanimously endorsed President Ford's nomination of her to succeed George Bush.

"Somewhere the Republican Party is doing something wrong," the white-haired Iowa national committeewoman said. "Either we're being out-organized or out-sold. I suspect it's a little of both."

There had been some internal grumbling when Ford chose Bush to be U.S. mission chief in Peking and picked Mrs. Smith, 59, to take his place. But there was no hint of dissent after Bush reminded the committee that Ford was "head of the party," and wanted Mrs. Smith to head the national committee.

Mrs. Smith, a 10-year member of the national committee, and Bush's co-chairman since last February, chose Richard Obenshain, 38, Virginia State GOP Chairman, to be her co-chairman.

Meanwhile, the President Monday announced the appointment of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. as supreme commander of NATO and commander of American forces in Europe. He is expected to give up his job as White House chief of staff on Friday.

Haig, 49, who succeeds retiring Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, will assume the North Atlantic Treaty Organization post Dec. 15 and take over command of U.S. troops Nov. 1.

Ford's selection of Haig was approved unanimously by NATO's defense planning committee in Brussels Monday.

Caution in inflation fight urged

DALLAS (UPI) — Government and industry Monday urged caution in the fight to end the worst peacetime inflation in U.S. history because abrupt moves might add to inflation and undercut strides in other areas such as the environment.

Over 70 leaders in energy-related industries, government and special interest groups met to focus on energy and conservation and how they should be dealt with in the fight against inflation.

A similar group met in Pittsburgh and agreed that a balanced federal budget and new money sources for corporate expansion were needed to solidify the economy.

The suggestions made by leaders of many corporate giants will be presented at an ultimate summit on inflation, chaired by President Ford, Sept. 27-28 in Washington, D.C.

In Dallas, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said development of energy resources within the U.S. will be a major weapon against inflation because it will eliminate many shortages and allow a fair price for petroleum products. But he also warned against environmental harm.

In Pittsburgh, corporate leaders were near unanimity in their belief that wage-price controls should not be reimposed. Some even said they would be willing to pay higher corporate or personal income taxes in return for a tight federal budget and investment incentives.

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit resigns

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit, riding the crest of popularity over his invasion of Cyprus, resigned Monday and plunged Turkey into its second government crisis in seven months. Blaming his action on disagreements with the ultra-conservative, Moslem-oriented National Salvation Party's Vice Premier Necmettin Erbakan, Ecevit said he would seek a stronger mandate in new elections.

Ching Ching and Chia Chia seem to be hitting it off well together, raising smiles on panda-lovers disappointed by the flop of Chi Chi and An An. The two giant pandas went on public display at London Zoo Sunday, tumbling and rolling happily together in their glassed-in paddock. Zoo officials expressed hope the two animals — presented to former British Prime Minister Edward Heath on his trip to Peking last spring — would be the first giant pandas to breed outside their native China.

Out in Enid, Okla., Dr. Nancy Ogle and her 14 Phillips University behavioral science students were booked, fingerprinted, photographed, searched and locked up in the Garfield County Jail as a class exercise "to allow the students to experience what it's like to be behind bars."

Most of the students intend to enter the field of corrections when they graduate. Observed one of the jailed students, coed Susie Pumphrey: "It's one thing just to walk through with a tour, but it's another to go in as a prisoner and be locked up."

Laotian government sources said Monday that civilian pilot Emmet Kay, 47, the last known living American prisoner of war in Indochina, will be released Wednesday by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao. Kay was captured May 7, 1973, while flying a charter for the U.S. government and inclement weather forced him to land his small plane in Communist-held Laotian territory.

Andre Previn, now touring the U.S. as conductor of the prestigious London Symphony Orchestra, says the music he composed for Hollywood films 15 years ago was "awful," and added "Some critics will forgive you for being an ax murderer, but never for scoring a film. 'They will refuse this'

Plan for amnesty doesn't go far enough: ex-POW

President Ford's amnesty plan doesn't go far enough in forgiving those men who left the country, says a former prisoner of war.

"This cannot be classified as any type of amnesty," said John Young of Arlington Heights. Young, who spent more than six years as a prisoner of war during the Vietnam War, has been working with Clergy and Laity Concerned to bring about a total unconditional amnesty for persons affected by the war.

"I'm opposed to the conditional amnesty which was announced today," Young said, adding that what has been proposed by the President is a punitive action.

YOUNG SAID HE believes that most persons who fled the country to avoid the draft or defected from the armed forces during the Vietnam conflict will not accept the proposal.

"I think they will refuse this," Young said. He said his group will continue to work for a total and unconditional amnesty for all concerned.

"This includes persons who have been prosecuted in the courts or may have already served prison sentences, anyone who has been affected by the war," he added.

Young said he realizes that this goal will take a long time to attain, but added the fact that the government has made a move from total opposition to amnesty to a limited form may be considered a positive step.

"This is certainly going to be a long, hard struggle, but we believe it will be worth it," Young added.

Harper College to get OK to purchase second campus

by WANDALYN RICE

The staff of the Illinois Community College Board will recommend Friday that Harper College be given permission to buy land at Schoenbeck and Palatine roads in Arlington Heights as a site for a possible second campus.

The board will meet in Macomb Friday to debate and act on the recommendation. In a report distributed to board members this week, the board staff says that allowing Harper to buy the land is a "prudent step" in view of the shortage of vacant land in the Northwest suburbs and the increasing land values in the area.

The college would have to go back to the state board for further approval if and when it decides to build on the 146-acre site. College officials have said they do not intend to build on the site immediately, but will hold it until student enrollment increases to the point where it is necessary.

If the state board approves the staff recommendation Friday, the action will open the way for a referendum by the college to raise the money to buy the land from the Mayo Foundation. Officials of Mayo have indicated that they want to sell the land, either to Harper or to a private developer, as quickly as possible.

Approval of the staff recommendation by the ICCB also would mark the first time that a community college in Illinois has been given permission to expand past one site.

HARPER OFFICIALS have said that enrollment projections for the college have indicated that by about 1980 the college's present site at Algonquin and Roselle roads will be unable to accommodate all its students. They have said that by buying a second site now, the college will have the land available when it is needed. If projections are inaccurate and the site is unnecessary, college officials have said the land could be sold, probably at a profit.

The village of Arlington Heights in June set aside the site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads for the college on its zoning plan. However, the village board said then they would review the action in six months to see if the college was making reasonable progress toward buying the land.

Last week Harper Board Pres. William Kelly indicated that he would appear before the village board following the state board meeting on the site "to report to them on how we are doing."

Harper officials will attend the meeting Friday to answer questions about the site. The college board has not set a timetable for a referendum to raise money for the land.

Opinions differ on amnesty

Mount Prospect, a World War II veteran.

MRS. MARY JOERN of Mount Prospect was like many residents who favored the amnesty only if the draft evaders were required to "put in some time to the country for not having defended it in a time of war, even though the war wasn't ours."

Edward Meinken of Schaumburg was one of few area residents who viewed the amnesty order through the eyes of teenage draft dodgers, saying, "These draft dodgers have to pay some kind of penalty. But to have to stay away from the U.S. for the rest of your life is kind of a tough penalty to pay. I'm more in favor of them coming back and serving some time, because when you're 17, 18 or 19 years old, and you make a mistake, it's kind of tough to pay for it the rest of your life," he said.

Other residents interviewed on the street by Herald reporters didn't view the amnesty order with as much sympathy.

"Ford is all wrong about this in any shape or form. I think that it's a slap in the face to the boys who were in the war. The Vietnam war wasn't good and it wasn't declared. But, when another war comes, is everyone going to run from serving because these guys are being given so easily?" said Mrs. Lillian Herkovitz of Buffalo Grove.

Keith Fletcher of Buffalo Grove, a staff sergeant in the Air Force on active duty, said, "If men and women in this country are allowed to choose whether they are going to fight or not, in a war, then this country is not going to survive if it has to defend itself in another war again."

MANY RESIDENTS like F. J. Shields of Des Plaines could not justify conditional or unconditional amnesty for draft dodgers under any circumstances, and totally rejected the President's order.

"They chose to leave the country; they forfeited their citizenship, now let them live with it. We don't need people like that in this country, and no matter what, I cannot see granting amnesty to these people," Shields said.

Gerald Wilk, a 20-year-old student at Harper College in Palatine, said "I can't possibly be for this amnesty when there are guys that came back home from 'Nam with legs blown off, and yet they served. How can you grant amnesty to a guy who ran from this country with both legs?" Wilk said.

Be ready to serve 'full 24 months': U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Monday that men participating in the administration's conditional amnesty plan should be prepared to serve the full 24 months of alternative service.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman, briefing reporters at the White House with Selective Service Director

Byron Popitone and Pentagon General Counsel Martin Hoffman, made clear that those eligible for amnesty should expect to perform 24 months of alternative service and indicated that most might have to serve the full time.

Silberman listed three general "mitigating factors" that will be taken into account in disposition of cases. They are:

- The degree of hardship to an individual's family now.
- The "willfulness" of the alleged violation, such as whether the individual was "legitimately confused" at the time.

• And how the individual has conducted himself since the violation.

Those evaders who fail to live up to the agreement afterward "will be subject to prosecution on the underlying charge of draft evasion," Silberman said.

Asked why he thought the program was attractive, Silberman said it guaranteed that those who abide by the terms are assured that they will not have a felony conviction "and that is terribly important."

Circus brings back the past

The circus came to town last weekend and with it came all the traditional thrills of the old-time tent circus.

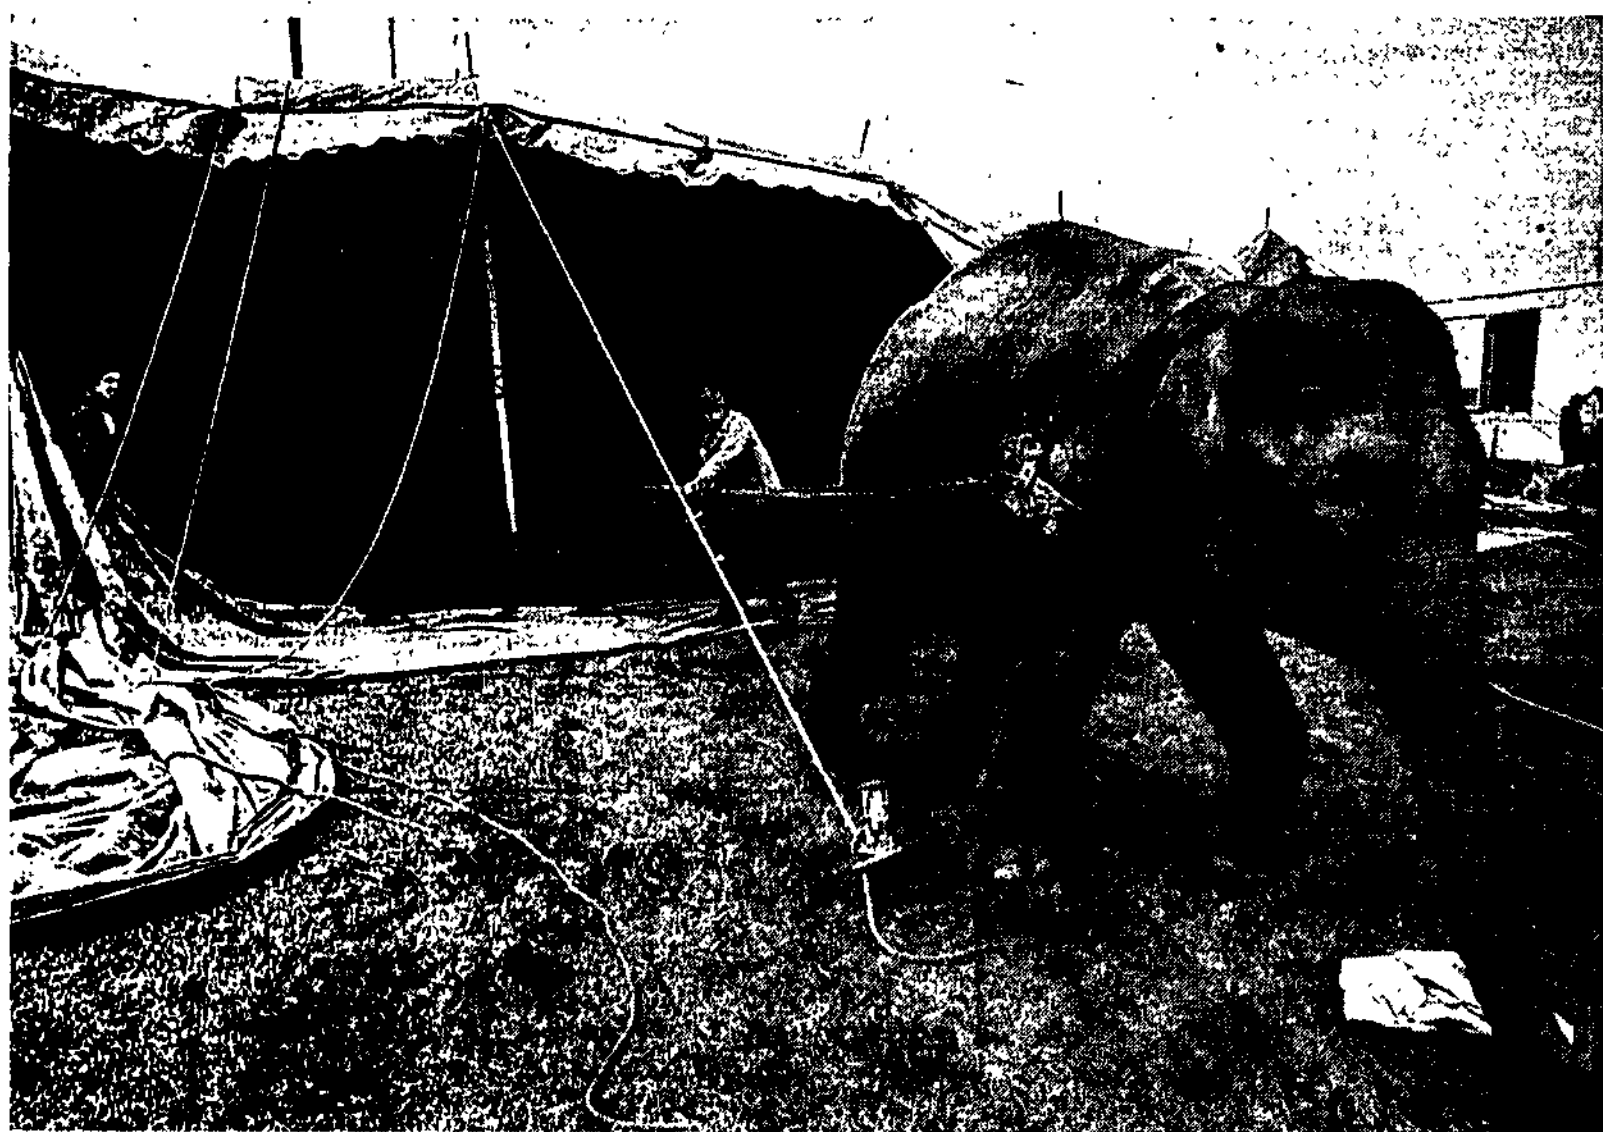

And just as fascinating as the circus acts themselves was the rigging of the tent Friday morning at Heritage Park.

The first show of the George Matthews Great London Circus was 4 p.m. Friday. Residents watched talented circus artists and animals perform. The last show was Sunday.

A circus tent is really nothing but a king-size sheet.

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALITY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

The event is part of the Lions of Illinois Foundation's annual Candy Day.

Two panels have openings

Commission appointments coming soon, Lang says

Wheeling Trustee Albert Lang Monday said he expects the village board to make appointments to two village commissions within the next few weeks.

There is one opening on the plan commission and five on the newly created Bicentennial commission.

Lang, chairman of the judiciary and purchasing committee, said the village board has interviewed one person for the opening on the plan commission and will interview one more before making an appointment. The vacancy occurred last week with the resignation of Comr. Desere Smet.

The village board has interviewed a number of persons who are interested in serving on the Bicentennial commission and Lang said appointments will be made very soon. "I want to get this done as rapidly as possible because I want to get the Bicentennial commission in operation," he said.

Village officials said recently that Wheeling is far behind many other communities in planning the local celebration of the nation's 200th birthday. They have urged the rapid appointment of a Bicentennial commission to plan the celebration.

Free glaucoma tests next week

Free testing for glaucoma, an eye disease that can cause blindness, will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Sept. 23 and 24 in the parking lot at the intersection of Elmhurst and Camp McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.

The test is for persons aged 35 and older. Persons need not be residents of Prospect Heights, said Glen Thorp of the sponsoring Prospect Heights Lions Club. The tests will be given by the Lions of Illinois Foundation.

It is estimated that more than 100,000 persons in Illinois have the eye disease — many without knowing it, Thorp said. He added that the disease has no symptoms in its first stages.

The Lions Club also is collecting old and used eye glasses. Persons wishing to donate eye glasses should bring them to the mobile testing unit on those two nights.

'New Dawns' to sing at potluck supper

The "New Dawns" of Wheeling High School will perform at the school Choral League's potluck supper Thursday. The supper will start at 6:30 p.m. at the school, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd. The swing choir will entertain with contemporary music, according to Director Phil Stutz.

Mr. and Mrs. David Schreiber

Pamela Townsend weds at Lake Redstone, Wis.

It was a year ago at a wedding in North Dakota that Pamela Lynn Townsend of Arlington Heights met David H. Schreiber of Randolph, Wis. On Aug. 10, Pam and David were married in her parents' lake home at Lake Redstone, LaValle, Wis.

Seventy family members attended the 3 p.m. double ring wedding and the dinner reception which followed at the Voyageur in Reedsburg, Wis.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Townsend, 231 S. Kenilworth, and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schreiber of Randolph.

The newlyweds are now residing in Eau Claire, Wis., where David is employed by Menards of Eau Claire. He is a December '73 graduate of the University of Wisconsin in LaCrosse. Pam, a graduate of Arlington High School, is a June '74 graduate of the University of Minnesota where she received a B.A. degree in philosophy.

Her sister, Patricia, was maid of honor, and the groom's sister, Mary, was bridesmaid. Brook Barcus, 5, cousin of the bride from Pewaukee, Wis., was flower girl.

The groom's brother, Gregg, Iowa City, Iowa, was best man, and the bride's cousin, Darwin Townsend, Arlington Heights, was usher.

A friendly 'homecoming'

Lawmakers tell about work

by PAT ADAM

State Representatives Eugenia Chapman and Virginia Macdonald found themselves among friends when they spoke to Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club Thursday night.

The two women members of the Illinois General Assembly from the Third District belong to the club, and they were warmly received by fellow members as they discussed their committee work in the state legislature and answered questions.

Early in their remarks Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Macdonald, a Democrat and a Republican, respectively, but nonpartisan in their support of the Equal Rights Amendment thanked club members for backing the ERA.

(The National Federation of Business and Professional Women is a long-time supporter and worker for ERA. At the national convention in Chicago this past summer, it was announced that $251,091 had been raised to help continued efforts to ratify the amendment which still needs approval in five states.)

REP. CHAPMAN TOLD the members that their immediate past national president, Jean McCarrey of Villa Grove, Ill., had been most effective when she testified in behalf of ERA before the Illinois House committee.

Both lawmakers urged the B&PW to continue their efforts and expressed confidence the amendment eventually would pass.

Now completing her fifth term as a state representative, Mrs. Chapman spoke from the vantage of a seasoned legislator. She currently is a member of the Committees on Education, Higher Education and Human Resources and of the Commission on the Status of Women.

She explained briefly the process by which all bills proposed are sent to committee for hearing and vote except where a bill may be referred directly to the floor because its sponsors feel it will not get a fair hearing in committee.

SUB-COMMITTEES have become more important during her 10 years in Springfield, she said. They are the means for giving more effective study to proposed legislation though at times they can serve also as a "kindly burial," she explained.

Subcommittees, along with more staff, have enabled legislators to do a better job, she said.

Among subcommittees on which she serves Mrs. Chapman cited the subcommittee on women's athletics of the Higher Education Committee. This body has compiled a report on discrimination against women in athletics at the 10 Illinois state universities. It reveals gross inequity in funding with 95 per cent of monies going to boys' athletics and only 5 per cent to girls', she said. She talked briefly also about the subcommittee on scholarships and on health care and costs.

Of the Committee on Human Resources she said it has become increasingly more interesting and important, having to deal with such issues as health, mental health, public aid, acupuncture licensing and death with dignity.

IN ANSWER to a question about the transfer of mental health patients from institutions to the community, she said that local mental health treatment is preferable. "It saves money, and people are happier," she declared. But transfer should be determined on the basis of individual need, not the chance to obtain more federal funding, she said. However we are not adequately supporting those receiving out-of-residential treatment, she added.

Noting that all 50 states now have either a committee or a commission on the Status of Women, Mrs. Chapman said that the Illinois commission presently is doing research into sex discrimination in state statutes. These laws must be changed to conform with the new Illinois Constitution, she said, because it forbids any discrimination on the basis of sex. She predicted as many as 60 bills in this area would be offered in the next legislative session.

Both she and Representative Macdonald are members of the Interim Committee on Employment of Women and Minorities, which has looked into government employment in the state. Its study revealed that an eighth grade man makes more than a woman with a bachelor's degree.

REPRESENTATIVE Macdonald told the B&PW that she finds this an exciting time to be in government and that all 11 women now serving in the Illinois General Assembly feel that way.

She herself, a freshman lawmaker, has found the experience the most exciting of her life, she said.

Mrs. Macdonald expressed confidence "in the structure of government and in the people who serve," despite examples of misplaced faith in recent times, she said.

As a newcomer to the legislature, she said she feels a more defined work program is needed, at the least a minimum of joint rules for the House and Senate. While she supports annual sessions, she believes the business of law-making can be finished within six months and does not favor a full-time legislature though the job itself is full-time, she said. Communities look to the legislature for help in solving many problems, and representatives devote much time to this, she explained.

AS A MEMBER of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, a new committee, she said she had learned much about the problems of agriculture. The scenic rivers bill, defeated in the recent session, demonstrated the conflict between the two areas of responsibility of the committee, she said. Farmers are not ready to accept zoning, which is what the bill, which she sponsored, would provide.

Strip mining is another important concern of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, she said. We are going to have to utilize Illinois coal, she said, but technology must be found to mine it that will enable us to restore the land. Illinois, which ranks first in world soybean production, is important as a world food supply as well as a great industrial state.

A main concern of the Veterans, Personnel and Pensions Committee of which she is a member, the Republican legislator said, is funding of the state teachers pension system which has been neglected for years and is at a dangerously low point. "We must include funding in the budget," she declared.

AS A MEMBER of the Elections Committee, she conceded it is a partisan body but expressed pride in the ethics legislation enacted in the recent session.

Asked how it is possible for a legislator to understand the countless bills that must be considered, she said the Legislative Research Bureau and the Legislative Council are a big help in providing lawmakers with reports so they can better understand a bill.

Individual legislators do gain expertise, she added, and "we come to respect and rely on them."

The majority of legislation considered is non-partisan, Mrs. Macdonald noted.

Another question concerned the earlier promise to eventually make the Illinois Tollway system a freeway system.

"That promise should be kept," she said. Repair and upkeep have thus far been cited as reasons for continuing tolls, she added.

Piccolo music highlights wedding

Steven is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell R. Bang, 413 S. Carlyle Pl., Arlington Heights.

The bride walked down an aisle marked with a white picket fence and potted flowers attired in an old-fashioned gown of white cotton voile featuring long sleeves and a train. A white picture hat with a chiffon streamer and a mixed garden bouquet completed her ensemble.

PRECEDING THE MAID of honor down the aisle was the bride's sister Linda, dressed in an apricot cotton voile dress embroidered with white. A garland of mixed garden flowers was her headpiece and she played an English court dance number on the piccolo. She also played two numbers by Bach as processional for the maid of honor and the bride and her father.

Maid of honor for the double ring ceremony was the bride's sister Sharon. She wore a light green cotton voile dress embroidered in white and carried a mixed garden bouquet.

Steven was attended by his brother,

Mrs. Steven Bang

Too tight dress renewed

Dear Dorothy: Considering you one of my favorite pack rats, I thought you might be interested in how I renewed a print cotton dress which had buttons about halfway down the front. The dress got a bit tight in the midriff section and the buttons pulled the material away in a couple of places.

Hated to give the dress up and pondered over it for a bit. Suddenly realized what could be done. I sewed the belt on from the neck to the end of the button-hole part — like a plaquette — and then opened the seams a bit on each side. The dress looks good again and I can either wear it as a shift or with a narrow patent leather belt. — Clara Weiss

Dear Dorothy: I save old and new newspapers. Is there any way to store them so they won't turn yellow or so they won't turn brown so fast? — Mrs. J. Stevens

Unless they are chemically treated, newspapers are going to get yellow no matter how you store them. Unhappily, treating them is expensive.

Dear Dorothy: Noticed that my neighbor has been using plastic mats with a cork bottom on her dining table. I'm tempted to tell her that plastic sometimes spells trouble on wood but want to check. — Avery Berkson

Plastic tops are okay. It's the plastic-coated bottoms or all-plastic mats that can cause the problems.

Dear Dorothy: The best way to move caked-on food or marks from a glass baking dish is to soak the piece in a solution of an enzyme presoak and water. Soaked overnight, it will be like new by morning. — J. Edwards

A 'normal' heart rate sometimes isn't

Your column about coffee and your heart was rather disturbing to me. You said that people with resting heart rates over 80 beats per minute were more likely to have a heart attack or drop dead than people with resting heart rates below 70. My doctor, who is quite renowned, told me that a normal heart rate for women was between 75 and 84 — somewhat higher than for men. I had always thought that around 80 was normal. I have had a faster heart rate than usual these past few years. A number of years ago I had attacks of rapid heart beats and took quinidine, but I'm not troubled with that any more.

I have given up coffee and only have a half cup of Sanka in the mornings and rarely drink tea. Alcohol seems to speed up my heart at times, and I thought it was a depressant. I drink very little, however. I'm 63 and female and have been very active. I would appreciate further information about the heart rates.

Yes, I did say that. It is the result of a study of personnel from the People's Gas Light and Coke Co. When doctors talk about likelihood in groups, you cannot then say it will happen to one particular person. It is just a statement of risk factor.

Normal heart rates are said to be between 60 and 100 beats per minute. The problem is the definition of normal. It is used to define the common finding. If you measured the resting heart rate you would find it between 60 and 100 in most people.

Normal, meaning "common," isn't too helpful in evaluating health. In a population where more than half the people die from heart and vascular disease, being normal can be downright dangerous. What you want are optimal findings — meaning the kind of measurements you see in the people with the least amount of illness or the lowest death rate. Thus, it is proper to say a resting heart rate below 70 is more of an optimal value than a rate above 80. However, both values are "normal."

WHEN A PERSON has a higher heart rate it really serves as a warning to the doctor to look for the cause. If it is because the patient should quit. He should quit anyway. If it is because he is out of shape and overweight, he needs a fitness program. If it is from living with a cup of coffee always in his hand, he should stop that. In some cases it is simple anxiety, and the doctor may want to reassure him or find out what is causing the anxiety.

A "resting" heart rate should be one taken early in the morning before the person starts doing a lot of physical activity or gets involved in life's situations. Or, it can be later in the day, but then it will be influenced by what has been going on. Many men sitting at their desk in the afternoon will have a heart rate over 100.

The office coffee, cigarettes, lack of physical fitness and stress all contribute to the finding. It is probably this individual with these unhealthy habits who is most likely to drop dead or have a heart attack. So, a "high normal" heart rate is a symptom. If it is caused by unhealthy habits the thing to do is correct the habits.

Voters should protect governor's partial veto

Illinois voters will be asked in November whether the governor should be deprived of the "amendatory veto" power granted to the state's chief executive in the 1970 state constitution.

The amendatory veto gives the governor the right to make recommendations for specific changes in legislation approved by the General Assembly, avoiding the necessity of vetoing an entire law because of one or two bad provisions.

The amendatory veto is an innovative measure which gives the governor flexibility in dealing with complex legislation, and which helps to prevent special interests from incorporating undesirable measures in bills which the chief executive feels that he must sign for their more beneficial provisions.

We urge Illinois voters to cast their ballots in favor of retaining the amendatory veto.

Those favoring repeal of the amendatory veto argue that it has given the governor the power to "rewrite legislation" approved by the General Assembly.

That is patently untrue, and we believe that proponents of that argument are more interested in limiting the powers of Daniel Walker than they are in the question of how much discretion the governor should have.

The Illinois Supreme Court has already ruled that the amendatory veto cannot be used to rewrite legislation — and its decision had nothing to do with Gov. Walker's use of the power.

The court overturned an amendatory veto by Gov. Richard Ogilvie on a bill dealing with state aid to parochial schools, in fact, because it judged that Ogilvie had indeed exceeded the scope of the new power and rewritten the bill.

Walker, on the other hand, used the amendatory veto wisely in a recent action when he approved a bill to eliminate a bad provision from legislation on the new Regional Transportation Authority.

Overuse of the amendatory veto may be corrected by the Supreme Court, which will finally arrive at a precise delineation of how far it may be extended. Moreover, the legislature needs only a simple majority to override an amendatory veto, as opposed to a three-fifths vote to overcome an absolute veto.

The amendatory veto is a useful governmental tool, and we ask a "no" vote on the blue ballot which would eliminate it.

Walker's wrong

With unnecessary hoopla, Gov. Daniel Walker last week vetoed a legislative measure which has been widely described as a bill "to give pensions to convicted felons."

Seldom does a governor, in announcing a veto, find it necessary to accompany his action with a sophomoric parody of Poe's classic poem, "The Raven."

In his ridicule of this provision, he was apparently aiming to obscure the fact that, along with the felon-pension measure, he was also overturning another provision which was designed to eliminate the possibility of persons who hold down more than one public job also benefiting from more than one public pension.

The governor conveniently overlooked his amendatory veto power, by which he could have struck down the controversial felon-pension provision while upholding the double-dipping ban.

We grant that the provision for retaining the pension rights of public employees who have been convicted of misconduct is one which stirs resentment among many people.

However, it was passed nearly unanimously by both houses of the legislature, with the help of the reasoned arguments of Rep. Leo LaFleur, R-Bloomington, who attached the amendment in the House.

LaFleur contends that provisions of the new Illinois constitution say that convicts are to be restored to their rights as citizens upon completion of their sentences, and that state pensions are not to be impaired under any circumstances. Further, he contends that depriving a family of the breadwinner's pension works a hardship on innocent members of the family.

We agree with LaFleur, and we encourage him to resubmit his proposal to the legislature.

Pollution an issue, too

Auto safety debated

by ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How do you equate money and human life when it comes to auto safety?

The auto industry is pressing the government to ease the auto pollution standards and to cut back on some auto safety devices.

The theory is that this will cut the cost of automobiles and can help ease the nation's inflation. The chairman of General Motors, Richard C. Gerstenberg, says the government's mandatory safety program has added an average $270 to the price of GM cars since 1972.

But does it really make economic sense to water down the pollution standards, or remove some of the safety devices?

For example, a study released by the National Academy of Sciences this month claims as many as 4,000 persons die each year because of air pollution from cars.

Added to this, automobile pollution may be responsible for U. S. workers taking 4 million illness-related days off from work in urban areas — a tremendous loss to the economy in terms of productivity.

The argument to tighten — rather than weaken — auto safety standards carries considerable merit for one major reason: The highway fatality rate has dropped since the government got in the auto safety business in 1967 with the passage of the National Highway Traffic Safety Act.

According to safety experts, 56,000 persons died in auto accidents last year. But if the death rate had continued at its 1967 rate — that is before the government instituted its safety campaign — 72,000 persons would have died in 1973.

The two latest safety items under criticism are the airbag, scheduled to be installed in 1977 model cars, and the interlock ignition system — mandatory on 1975 models — which prevents a driver from starting a car until his seat belt is hooked.

Gerstenberg said the removal of the interlock system might result in a saving of up to $40 in the price of the car.

An irritant to many motorists, despite its life saving possibilities, the system also is in danger of being scrapped by Congress.

The House already has passed a bill to remove the interlock system, and there is a rising tide of opposition to the airbag which critics claim could add another $200 to the price of the car.

But the safety proponents apparently picked up some powerful support earlier this month.

In a message to Congress, President Ford said "the national traffic safety effort has proved beneficial" and he told the lawmakers that there is "little doubt that our motor vehicle safety standards are saving lives and reducing injuries."

Finally, said Ford, the safety campaign has resulted in "enormous financial savings" in wages, medical costs, legal expenses and property damage.

Dorothy Meyer's column

'New job? No thank you!'

Any time I get up to here with my job and think, "There's gotta be an easier way to make a living," I remember when I was a waitress. Waitressing is serving mankind the hard way and how, and I was glad I only had to do it long enough to earn some scratch for a few semesters of college.

Besides never wanting to spill soup on a customer again, I also don't ever want to be a switchboard operator, a teacher or a farmer.

Although I wouldn't like to be one, I have a deep respect for switchboard operators and think they should make more money than anybody. And even more than that if they work for a company that has a paging system. My patience level is zilch and if I had to chant, "Joe Bloo — dial O please," more than three times, I would eventually yell, "Dammit, Joe, dial O or I'm going to ram you in the parking lot first chance I get." (I must admit that I was once paged three times and didn't answer, but that was because we don't have telephones in the ladies' room yet.)

Repeating the name of the company

every time she answers a call must be nerve-racking too. I know an operator for a company we shall call Pfitzer, Pfitzer, Pfitzer and Fein. After one particularly grueling day at the board she went home to discover the cat was missing. So she opened the back door to call "Here, kitty kitty kitty," and yelled, "Pfitzer Pfitzer Pfitzer and Fein."

With a patience level that rules out switchboarding I obviously couldn't be a teacher either. I love little kids one at a time, but in bunches they are deadly and I figure that brute force would be the only way to survive in a classroom. But that's a no-no in today's system and that must be very frustrating. Why else would Marilyn come home and call our cat Pfitzer Pfitzer Pfitzer and Fein? I also know it's been a rough day when I greet her with, "Hi, how about steak for dinner," and she says, "Aw shaddup," on the way to her room where she starts punching the daylight out of her pillows.

Farmers must need a lot of patience too because there's nothing stupider than a herd of chickens or ornerier than a flock of cows even though he's permitted to kick a cow if he feels like it. But it's the getting up early that turns me off about farming. Farmers have to get up before the rest of the world and hustle to the barn to milk the cows. When I get out of bed it takes me 15 minutes just to get my manual toothbrush working right and if I was a farmer I'd ruin the cows, hitching all the wrong parts to the milking machine. Provided I didn't get lost on the way to the barn.

But if I have any more days like yesterday around here, I'm going back to waitressing. I owe it to the company to stay away from the switchboard.

Stable gas prices mark comeback for big-car sales

by EDWARD S. LECHTIN

DETROIT (UPI) — The American car buyer is fickle and Detroit hasn't been able to keep up with his ever-changing moods.

Last winter, the big car seemed all but deserted in favor of smaller models as gasoline prices soared and service station lines lengthened. Doomsmongers predicted an early death of the big car.

Now, with gasoline prices stable and the longest lines at service-station restrooms, dealers can't get hold of enough big cars. At least one auto company has begun to cut back output of its subcompact cars.

THE ONE THING that worries Detroit's auto executives the most is prices. Higher car prices will push Americans into smaller cars and another sharp jump in fuel prices could halt the industry's rebound from the worst first-half sales mark in 11 years.

Ford Motor Co. Vice Pres. John B. Naughton already has warned that a 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax hike might start the pendulum swinging widely again.

"The one thing the nation certainly doesn't need at this time is another artificial depressant on automobile sales," Naughton says.

"We've had enough difficulty with cost-induced price increases, sudden shifts in consumer preferences in cars and the reduced sales that a near-doubling of gasoline prices already has helped to bring about in the last year," he said.

DESPITE THE big swing to small cars, the full-size Chevrolet and Ford are the No. 1 and 2 selling cars this year. But their margin over the next two models — the subcompact Vega and Pinto — isn't as great as in 1973.

The subcompact car market — the Pinto, Vega and Gromlin — climbed from 8.5 per cent of the U.S. market in January of 1973 to 12.2 per cent last January. In the first six months of the year it held down 10.2 per cent and in July had dropped to 7.5 per cent.

The standard-size car — the big Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth — accounted for 17.0 per cent of the field in January, 1973 but dropped to 12.3 last January. For the first six months, it grabbed 12.4 per cent and in July began climbing again to 13.2 per cent.

The big gainers have been the intermediate and compact car segments. The separation between them in size is narrowing and new models for '75 will further blur the distinction.

COMPACTS accounted for 17.8 per cent of sales in the first half of 1974 with intermediates taking 24.1 per cent. That's a combined total of 41.9 per cent of the market, compared with 36.7 per cent for the first six months of 1973.

Price increases averaging close to $450 on the '75 model cars should drive more prospective car buyers into these two markets.

"There was an overreaction by everyone to the small car in January and February," commented one analyst. "People that are buying the big cars now are the ones that put it off earlier in the year. The long-term trend, based primarily on economics, is for smalls to keep edging up."

SOME OF THE customers who might purchase big Buicks, Oldsmobiles, Mercurys or Chryslers in 1975 might instead switch down to their smaller cousins, he said.

"The return hasn't been to the big cars. The strength in the larger models now has been in the intermediates," he said.

"With the price increases coming up, people will have to back down just a little on what they want to buy. The big smalls and the small bigs is where the market's at."

General Motors in the past year has converted four plants from big car to small car production, with Ford shifting three and Chrysler one. Between them and American Motors, a small-car specialist, the industry now has the ability to turn out 5 million small cars a year.

IN A GOOD YEAR, like 1972 or 1973 when total sales topped the 10 million mark, half the volume probably is just the right amount of small cars. Industry executives still expect 1974 will end up with small cars — compact, subcompact and foreign models — accounting for one of every two sales.

GM still is planning to introduce a mini-Chevy in 1976, based on its Brazil-built Chevette, but has scaled down production plans to no more than 200,000 in the first year. Ford has a new European model — a Honda-sized minicar that it probably will build in Spain — but hasn't committed itself to bringing it into this country.

Ford Pres. Lee A. Iacocca recently estimated the market for such an automobile in the United States might be about 250,000 cars a year. But industry analysts now think that market is shrinking and will continue to do so if gasoline prices don't climb again.

ONE SUBURBAN Detroit auto salesman doesn't even think there's that big a market for the subcompact models now.

In the last six months, Joe Girard, the world's top-selling car salesman, has delivered nearly 900 cars to customers, more than entire dealerships. Some of those sales are repeats.

"People who went into small cars four months ago are coming back to trade for a big '74," Girard says. "I've had 20 so far. They're taking a beating, but they just weren't comfortable in the small models."

She'll pinch-hit for Barbara Walters

Julie to bow as talk-show hostess

NEW YORK — Julie Nixon Eisenhower, perhaps the most vocal supporter of former President Nixon, will substitute for Barbara Walters as the hostess of the syndicated TV series "Not For Women Only" during one of three weeks Miss Walters will be on an overseas assignment.

"She was the personal choice of Miss Walters," said the spokesman for WNBC-TV, which originates the program and distributes it to 80 other stations across the nation.

The spokesman said he did not know why Miss Walters chose Mrs. Eisenhower.

HOWEVER, Miss Walters, who also is the cohost for NBC's "Today" show, had conducted several interviews with the former President while he was in office. She also interviewed former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower, the grandmother of Mrs. Eisenhower's husband, David.

The spokesman said "to the best of my knowledge" this was the first major appearance Mrs. Eisenhower has made as a TV moderator. He declined to disclose her salary for the show.

Miss Walters, the spokesman said, usually selects guest moderators for her panel discussion show.

During the Watergate crisis, Mrs. Eisenhower frequently and vociferously defended her father before the news media. She is the youngest of the former President's daughters. Tricia Nixon Cox is the eldest.

JULIE NIXON EISENHOWER

MISS WALTERS now is in the Middle East, where she will conduct interviews with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, which will appear on NBC.

by Frank S. Swertlow

Mrs. Eisenhower begins videotaping her one-week segment Tuesday at 10 a.m. and will complete her entire appearance that day, according to the spokesman.

Her segment will not be aired until late October because Miss Walters already has a backlog of videotaped programs.

"It's going to be a grind for her (Mrs. Eisenhower)," the spokesman said. "I don't know how she's going to do it, especially five shows in one day. That's tough even on a professional." Each individual show is a half-hour.

"SHE'S A VERY sweet girl," the spokesman said about Mrs. Eisenhower, who once visited the show and sat in the control room during a broadcast. "She seemed very cool and paid attention."

The spokesman said the topic for Mrs. Eisenhower's week of shows would be subtitled: "Public People, Private Lives."

Among the panelists are Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif.; Los Angeles Times columnist Nick Timmesch, and Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale, wife of the minister-author. Her husband married the Eisenhowers.

The spokesman said comedian Jerry Lewis and singer-actress Polly Bergen would host the next two shows after Mrs. Eisenhower.

Little Old Ladies do it again

A three-notrump contract is preferable to four hearts, but little old ladies like to raise one another. So do some other players. So when today's hand was played in a Swiss team, both the LOLs and their opponents reached four hearts.

The three of diamonds was led at both tables and East's king fell to South's ace. The ace of hearts was led and both East players dropped the queen. This didn't disturb the LOL declarer. Little old lady technique pays no attention to possible bad trump breaks. She continued by cashing the king and shortly thereafter had chalked up plus 420 after losing a spade, a heart and a diamond.

The other declarer studied that queen play for a long time. He had heard about safety plays and maybe that queen was a genuine singleton. He led a low trump toward dummy. East took his jack of trumps and led back a diamond. A third diamond was ruffed and thus South had lost his contract, his temper and his partner's confidence.

The cross country layout at Hasbrook Park in Arlington Heights is tight, hilly, and full of lots of nasty turns. Hersey head coach Larry Travis laid it out that way and he likes it because it gives everyone — coaches and fans alike — a chance to see the entire race.

Hersey's course is also slightly confusing. Sometimes the fans and cheerleaders get in the way of the runners. Other times the runners get lost.

Monday afternoon, Wheeling's Augie Zicarelli didn't get lost and he didn't get confused. The Wildcat senior negotiated all the turns and he cruised up and down the hills of Hasbrook Park to set a new course record of 14:17.

And thanks to Larry Travis and his superb architecture, everybody got to see Augie set the mark.

"How old is the course?" Zicarelli asked, after being informed that his time smashed by four seconds the old record held by Fremd's Chuck Ruppenthal.

"I don't know, but the record was set last year," replied Hersey's Jay McCarthy, who managed a respectable fourth spot Monday to lead his Huskie teammates to a pair of victories in the dual meet with Wheeling and Prospect.

Coming home after McCarthy (14:42), were Huskies Ron Stephan (14:45), Hal Stembidge (14:46), Craig Hanssen (14:48), and, in 10th place, John Shorb (14:55).

Behind Zicarelli in second place was Wheeling mate Rick Reese. The junior Wildcat ran the 2.8-mile course in 14:30, seven seconds ahead of Rich Podgorny of Prospect, as Wheeling edged the Knights, 24-33. Hersey whipped Wheeling, 25-33, and Prospect, 22-35.

Fremd rambled on with a pair of wins over Palatine and Buffalo Grove to increase its unbeaten string to five in league action. The Vikings packed in five runners at the front of the heap, all before any opponents made it into the chute.

Wilson Fieldhouse ran the 2.75-mile course in 13:55, followed closely by mates Paul Kinyon, Jim Galls, John Filosa, and Dave Scott (14:08). Jim Shaffer was top man for a tough Palatine squad in 14:20 for sixth place.

It marked the 100th dual meet victory for Fremd in nine years.

Forest View stretched its record in league duals to 4-1 with a pair of wins over Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows, placing five runners in the top 11. Meadows' Mike Scott was the winner with a 14:28 over the 2.75-mile course, and Tony Hess of the Falcons was next in 14:31.

Harriers from Hoffman Estates took the next three spots — Sam Cox (14:42), Dave Porzel (14:45), and Ed Elliott (14:48). But Forest View got good performances from Steve Schellenberger (14:51), Steve Hilliger (14:59), and Mike Ham (14:59:04) to nose out both the Mustangs and the Hawks — 25-31 and 27-29, respectively. Hoffman beat Meadows, 25-31.

Arlington swept past Schaumburg and Elk Grove to record its first victories of the season, 25-31 over the Saxons and 22-33 over the Grenadiers. Elk Grove edged Schaumburg, 26-29.

Mike Palmer and Mike Hommowun came in one-two for Schaumburg on the three-mile layout. Palmer won with a 15:59 and his teammate was just a second behind. But Arlington got good efforts from Greg Hansen (16:01), Mike Fisher and Greg Beuder to take the wins.

Elk Grove's top harriers were Mike Wolford (16:28 for fourth), Rick Wentzel (17:02), and Joe Cullen (17:04).

Even effort sparks Hersey in golf wins

If perfect sight is 20-20, what is 40-40 golfing? "Consistency," chuckled Hersey links coach Al Kintzle after his team had put that kind of scoring together to outdistance visiting Prospect and Wheeling in a conference double dual meet at Buffalo Grove Golf Club Monday.

The twin triumphs pushed the Huskies into a commanding lead in the Mid-Suburban League with a 5-0 slate. And they almost did it with five of a kind as fifth man Ray Hafner came in at 41 behind the four 40s.

Prospect was just barely able to salvage one victory in the varsity meet, 168-169 over the Wildcats. The Knights also remained undefeated in loop frosh-soph play when Mike Dee's 39 effort keyed a 175 finish to 192 for Hersey and 224 for Wheeling.

In the varsity affair Ed Stubbs, Mark Miesfeldt, Steve Hart and Kevin Krahn carded the 40s for the hosts. Pete Lund also had a 40 to head up Prospect but Scott Spielman came in at 42 and Steve Spielman and Paul Meals notched 43s.

For the 'Cats it was Mark Schultz at 41, Mike McHugh and John Leonetti at 42 and Dale Cooney at 44. Details of other meets Monday including a 141-144 Arlington win over St. Victor and Fremd's non-loop triumph will appear in Wednesday sports.

PACE-SETTER. Maine West's Joe Paul led the field most of the way in Saturday's Center meet on the Warrior campus. Paul was passed in the last lap by Willowbrook's Kurt Kleinow, the eventual winner, but Paul's second-place finish and good performances by his Warrior teammates gave Maine West the varsity title and the overall championship in the 10th annual meet. Maine West's runners nip LaGrange for Center title

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

The French have a special phrase for it, which means that it's true — the more things change, the more they stay the same.

And even though the Maine West Center meet brings freshness and zest to cross country, it also emphasizes those talents and qualities that make the sport so interesting in the first place.

"The whole picture in cross country has changed over the years," said Bill Barringer, the Maine West coach who has conducted the "center meet" for the past 10 years. "For a long while, the kids would just report in the fall and they'd walk and run, walk and run, to get in shape."

"Now it's entirely different," Barringer continued. "It seems that if you want to win, you have to run in the summer."

The center meet, too, has changed its focus in the many years since its inception.

Barringer ran another one of his center meets at Maine West last Saturday and again it was a huge success, drawing 23 teams and well over 600 runners on five levels of competition.

His own Warriors came away with the victory, edging defending champion LaGrange-Lions by three slim points. Barringer's freshmen were first-place winners, as were his A-varsity boys, as the Warriors nailed down the overall title.

The idea for a center meet originated in California and was brought here by an ambitious coach who envisioned a gathering of all the area harriers in one big meeting.

"What happens in California on any given weekend around the state," said Barringer, "is that they set up what they call a center meet. If you want to run, you come."

Here, as in California, the center meet was supposed to be a means for local runners to get in shape and to test their skills against other runners in a competitive atmosphere.

But now, as Barringer pointed out, the meet comes well after the beginning of the season for most teams, so the races are more than a conditioning jog for the harriers. The complicated team scoring and the weighted significance of the individual races don't subtract from the basic element of successful cross country — team depth.

Everybody has a chance to score and each runner can contribute to his team's victory.

"I realized the value of this meet when one of the coaches told me about the ride home on the bus after the meet one year," said Barringer. "He saw one of his boys with a trophy and he knew that it would be the only time that particular boy would have a chance to win a trophy."

The boy who won the biggest trophy Saturday was Kurt Kleinow of Willowbrook, who took first-place honors in the A-varsity race with a 14:57 clocking over the 3-mile course. He was followed — 10 seconds back — by Maine West's Joe Paul, whose effort and the showing of teammates Gary Brenner, Paul Mademan, John McCabe, and Phil Lambrecht gave the Warriors the title in a close finish.

Frank LeBeau of Maine West won the junior varsity race in 16:21 and Rolling Meadows' Tom Choise was the winner on the sophomore level (16:13). John Moody of Maine South won the B-varsity race in 16:13 and Carl Schwappach of Lyons took the freshman race.

Last year's defending A-varsity champ, Les Orlov of Willowbrook, came in third behind Kleinow and Paul at 15:15.

Hersey captured fifth place overall on good performances by Hal Stembidge, Craig Hanssen, and John Shorb. Conant was 16th as Cougars Dave Elderkin and Mark Kaufman placed eighth and ninth.

Barringer, who has run the center meet ever since the California coach left the area, can look forward to another "happening" next year.

Fremd takes invite crown; Wheeling's runners in 2nd

It's difficult to argue with success, so Fremd cross country coach Ron Menely won't try. But the Viking head man wasn't exactly overjoyed with his team's performance Saturday in the first annual Lake Park Invite.

Despite a first-place finish — sparked by a winning effort from Wilson Fieldhouse and a runner-up spot for Paul Kinyon — the perennially strong Vikings showed a weakness on the varsity level and nearly lost the title to a determined Wheeling crew.

"We felt very fortunate to come away with it," said Menely afterwards. "We tried to give it away."

Dave Scott and Jim Galls were the third and fourth finishers for Fremd, but they fell far behind the top ten and cost the team some points.

In addition, Menely dropped John Filosa to the sophomore level for the day, where he responded with a fine first-place performance. But his absence was felt on the varsity level, where he has run most of the season.

"Scott and Galls had off-days," said Menely. "But we had good efforts on all levels. I was pleased with the squad as a whole."

Juniors Dean Elleman performed well on the varsity level, placing high enough to capture crucial points for the Vikings and earning Menely's praise.

Fieldhouse continued his spirited running, coming around the three-mile course in 15:22, just a second ahead of teammate Kinyon. Wheeling's Augie Zicarelli posted a time of 15:24 for third place and Wildcat mate Rick Reese was seventh.

The final score on the varsity level was Fremd 55, Wheeling 86, with host Lake Park fifth at 105 points, and Forest View seventh with 139.

Forest View's first finisher was Tony Hess, with Steve Hilliger second. The Falcons' sophomore sensation, Darryl Robinson, was out of town on Saturday and did not run in the meet.

Elsewhere in weekend action, St. Victor placed third in Saturday's Notre Dame Invite. Lion Bob Kohn received a trophy for sixth place, individually, and teammate Tim Hendricks was seventh.

Schaumburg took a fifth place in the Warren Invitational as Saxons Mike Palmer and Mike Hommowun finished 11th and 13th in a field of over 120 runners. Mark Glabinski was the third man for Schaumburg, finishing in 50th spot.

Allen's retirement has 'em talking

NEW YORK (UPI) — Topic A in all the major league dugouts now is Richie Allen.

Most of his fellow ballplayers openly salute him and shake their heads in awe at the sheer admiration for the way he was able to say goodbye and walk away from a cool quarter million.

Nobody's guaranteeing the 32-year-old White Sox first baseman might not change his mind and come back next spring, although the feeling among those who have gotten a little closer to him than others is that he won't.

"The man has more pride than any human being I have ever seen, and if he says he has had enough, then I don't think he'd come back for five million," says Jose Cardenal, the Cubs' outfielder who played with Allen when he was with the Cardinals. "Richie's pride means more to him than the $225,000 he would get for playing next year."

"I know it does because I found out what kind of person he was when we were with the same club. He played harder than anybody; he helped more players than anybody and never complained."

"Before I went to spring training with the Cardinals, I heard a lotta things about him. When I saw him the first time I was afraid to talk to him. Right away though we started to have good communication. Soon I realized everything I heard about him was wrong."

"He was my best friend on the Cardinals. He taught me things that nobody ever did before, basic things. Like sometimes I'd strike out with the bases loaded and then come back to the dugout throwing my helmet and cursing."

"You know, some may say they can't see how any ballplayer can give up a $225,000 contract the way Richie is doing. I don't make that much money but I can see him doing it."

In their quarters, the Mets were talking about Allen's retirement, too.

"I don't know all the circumstances behind it, but I'd never quit at 32," says Willie Mays, who went until he was 42 and then stopped only because he couldn't keep going anymore. "It's too young."

"I think right now, as a ballplayer, Richie can go out and do anything he wants to do. I remember him telling Gaylor Perry and Juan Marichal before a ball game, 'Hey, I'm gonna hit a home run off you.' And you know what? He went out there and did it."

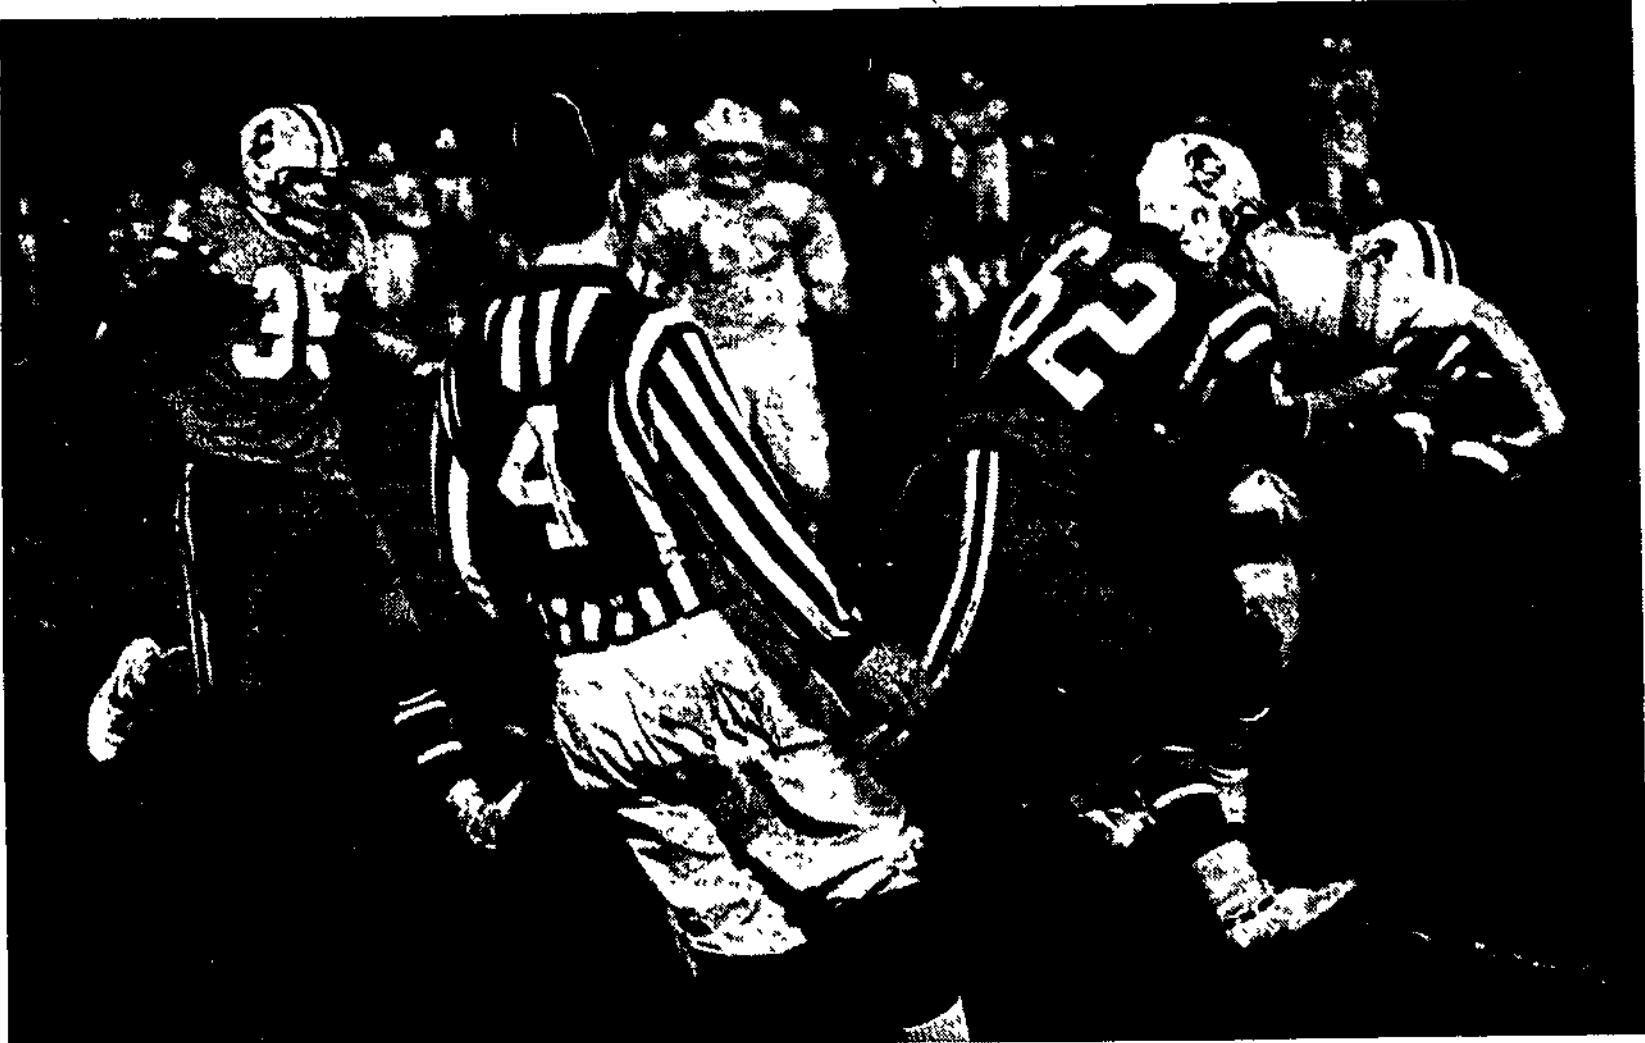

Roland Hemond, the White Sox general manager, says his club is "still in a state of shock" over Allen's unexpected departure. Hemond says that as far as the White Sox know Allen quit for the reason that he's been disappointed for being unable to lead them to a pennant.

"I believe Richie," Hemond says. "If there is any other reason, the man himself knows it."

The last thing Richie did before leaving was ask for two pairs of the White Sox' distinctive-looking red and white shoes. They were under his arm when he went out the clubhouse.

He never really said what he wanted the shoes for — souvenirs or as something altogether different — something he'll be able to use working around the horses he owns.

Moats fires 36 to lead Prospect to links crown

Prospect's Paul Moats fired a sizzling 36 over the back nine at Buffalo Grove Golf Club Saturday to lead his team to championship honors at the Rolling Meadows Invitational Frosh-Soph Golf Tournament.

Moats coupled his hot round with a 42 on the front nine to miss medalist honors by three strokes. Collectively though, he and his Knight teammates came up with an eight stroke margin in pacing the 12-team field and wrestling the title from defending champion Lake Forest.

Rockford Guilford claimed second place at 428 while the Scouts dipped to fifth at 444. Naperville finished third at 428 and New Trier East fourth at 437 while four other Mid-Suburban League entries joined with Elgin St. Edward in bringing up the rear.

Individual honors went to Bob Reitsch of the Rockford team with a dazzling 38-37-75. Moats tied with Paul Hladstey of the Indians for the runner-up prize and two more local linksmen, Buffalo Grove's Danny Krolack and Knight Bob Lopotko were among three sharing the fifth slot at 80.

All five scores on each squad were counted in the tourney. Helping out Prospect in addition to Moats and Lopotko were Scott Spielman at 83, Dave Fatina at 88 and Mike Dee at 91.

Rolling Meadows was next on the list among area teams, in eighth place at 456 behind Glenbrook South (448) and New Trier West (455). Chipping in for the Mustangs were Mike Mills at 87, Brett Burkhardt at 89, Scott Sander at 90 and Ken Miller and Mike Bulgor with 95s.

Hersey wound up ninth as Tim Rich carded a 91, Mark Miesfeldt a 92, Mark Battaglia a 93, Paul Platek a 95 and Greg O'Hara a 99. Conant was tenth behind a 93 from Rob Totten, a 97 from Randy Severinsen, a 99 from Steve Triphahn, and 102s from Jim Karras and Bill Madden.

For the Blson Mike Marshall followed up Krolack at 83, Bob Hoffman fired a 93 and Tony Puclaty a 95 but a fifth score was disqualified and the team fell into 12th place behind St. Edward.

YOU TAKE IT, St. Viator quarterback Bob Walsh could be saying to John Breen (37) as they get this play rolling Friday night at Hersey. Breen tallied on a 53-yard fourth quarter run. Blocking are Steve Leahy (72) and Matt Hower (63). St. Viator won, 25-18, with two last period touchdowns. (Photo by Jay Needleman)

Defending girls tennis champ opens with win

Rainy weather ruined the Mid-Suburban Conference opening tennis date Thursday, but five of the six meets were made up Friday.

Defending girls' team champion Arlington picked up where it left off in '73 with a 7-0 victory over Rolling Meadows. Prospect, last year's runner-up, matched Arlington with a 7-0 decision over Wheeling.

Elk Grove's girls just missed a shut-out, winning 6-1 over Schaumburg. Other action had Fremd over Hoffman Estates, 5-2, and Forest View over Conant, 4-3.

Palatine and Hersey were to have made up their meet on Monday. Buffalo Grove had a bye in the opening round.

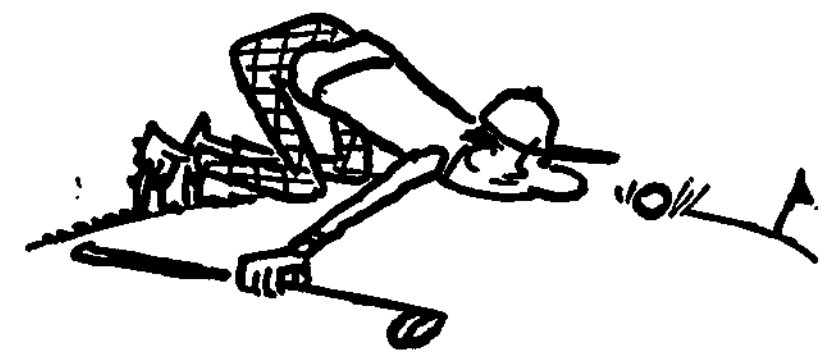

Six meets are scheduled for this afternoon, beginning at 4:30. They are Hersey at Buffalo Grove, Forest View at Palatine, Hoffman Estates at Prospect, Conant at Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows at Fremd and Schaumburg at Arlington. Wheeling has a bye.

Maine East runs to title in Ottawa harrier invite Dave Soethre's sixth place and Mark Tomask's seventh paced Maine East's team championship effort in last Saturday's 25-school Ottawa Invitational cross-country meet.

Soethre ran 14:59 and Tomask 15:08 over the three-mile course. Rockford East's Jim Gilchrist won in 14:34. Maine was an easy team winner over runner-up DeKalb, 75-101.

The remainder of East's varsity points were claimed by Bill Brown, 15th in 15:06; Frank Setipani, 20th in 15:12; and Mike Biel, 24th in 15:15.

Equally impressive was an outstanding 26-119 sophomore team triumph by East over runner-up Rockford East. All 23 schools entered the underclass race. Maine's place winners were Ken Struck second, Chuck Kulas third, Tom Plodzien fifth, Bill Fied seventh and Pat Donahue ninth.

The Demons tuned up for Ottawa by defeating Niles North, 19-44, on Thursday with a basically junior-varsity line-up.

John Hinterhauser won for East in 13:59. Other point winners included Scott Wageman, third in 14:09; Van Levy, fourth in 14:09; Matt Jostock, fifth in 14:15; and Chuck Selky, sixth in 14:29.

Maine West won both ends of a double bout on Thursday as a warm-up for its prestigious Center Meet held Saturday. The Warriors beat Glenbrook South, 19-42, and Maine North, 17-39.

West's Joe Paul set a school record for three miles by winning in 14:51. Other placers were Gary Brenner, third in 15:31; Paul Mademann, fourth in 15:46; John McCabe fifth in 16:05; and Phil Lambrecht, eighth in 16:21.

North's top five runners were Brad Furukawa, sixth in 16:09; Mike Melvin, seventh in 16:20; Mark Brodie, ninth in 16:28; Mark Sikorski, 10th in 16:40; and Mike Petykowiak, 12th in 16:43.

Wonderful Auto World

A BUSINESS OF SMALL SHOPKEEPERS
Part I

The frontiers of recorded human history have been pushed back 10,000 years to 8,000 B.C. (other records go back to 50,000 years ago - pictures on cave walls - and to 500,000 years ago - burial rituals).

In at least the recorded 10,000 year history (and probably much earlier) commerce has been conducted by small enterprises. Most of man's history has been agrarian, tied to the land, and early "business" resulted in an individual farmer trading surplus crops for items of utility made in limited quantities by other individuals.

Around the world today commerce is still principally the effort of small firms. In our country the Federal Department of Commerce currently lists 5,117,000 firms. While it is true that only 2,400 of these firms CONTROL 80% of our gross national product (GNP - the total value of all goods and services marketed in a given time period), nevertheless business is conducted mostly by small firms. For example, General Motors is one company but it markets its products through 15,000 small firms (gas stations). A single oil refiner may market its products through 75,000 small firms (gas stations). A motel chain may have 2,500 franchised motels displaying its identifying signs. And so on, through hundreds more franchisor-franchisee and lessor-lessee relationships.

Just recently the National Auto Dealers Association (NADA) released figures for 1973 concerning the size of the operation of the average American automobile dealer. They reveal, as they have over the 74 year history of the auto business, that SELLING AUTOMOBILES IS, like selling prepared food (restaurants) or gasoline (gas stations) or refrigerators (appliance stores) or auto insurance (an insurance agent) SMALL BUSINESS.

At the end of 1973 there were 30,100 dealers (18,700 domestic, 6,600 domestic and imported and 4,700 imports). On the average, each had 26 employees, sold 681 new and used cars and trucks, did $2.6 million total sales and service business and had an average net profit of $78,000. The average retail price of each new car sold was $3,931.00.

Small things do add up. All 30,100 dealers combined paid out $7.2 billion dollars gross payroll to 778,000 employees; their combined dollar sales of vehicles and service totaled a colossal $78.6 billion dollars.

Ladendorff Motors, Inc. is one of the 30,100 dealers, and proud to be. While some talk of a utopian society to be, I am happy to be a proactive (one who is out in front doing something positive) citizen (this column is proof of that). It is true that pollution (of all kinds) is a monstrous liability, and that my business is a serious contributor. Sometimes we all forget the offsetting assets of mobility of things and people and swift communication offered by transportation. Not enough attention is paid to my industry's efforts to remove itself from the pollution problem.

Medieval chivalry at Balboa Park

Knights still joust—at San Diego!

SAN DIEGO — Visitors to San Diego's Balboa Park can witness the rebirth of medieval chivalry . . . not as it was, but as it is wished to have been. Every first and third Sunday of the month colorful tents bloom, banners are unfurled, armor-clad knights take to the field of honor, and ladies make their way in flowing velvet gowns, Grecian togas . . . and sunglasses. The exercise in fantasy is provided by The Society for Creative Anachronism.

Jousting is a major part of the day's activities, beginning about noon with a grand entry parade on the lawn north of Balboa Park's bowling green. Jousting, or armed combat in the middle-ages tradition, is done with rattan weapons. The fighters must all wear armor. Some are clothed in actual chain mail. (Some of the Society's women make this type of armor by connecting metal links in the manner of chain necklaces to form sheets of material which are movable yet protective).

A system of acknowledged blows is used to choose the joust winner. A player acknowledges a blow to the arm by continuing without the use of that appendage. If the blow catches the leg, the player must continue on his knees. Occasionally, a groan comes from the field and a warrior crumples to the ground . . . "dead."

"It is a wonderful release for frustration," explained a girl in a Greek outfit. "When the men come back from fighting, they act beautifully to their ladies."

A LADY WILL offer a man a "favor," or small article of her clothing, that he can wear into combat to show that he is her "favorite" competitor and that he is fighting for her honor.

A man with a red staff and a black cloak with two crossed swords across the back is a "knight marshal" and acts as referee. A "herald" in a green cloak acts as official master of ceremonies, making all announcements of who is fighting whom.

Armor-clad knights take to the field of honor to battle with rattan weapons on alternate Sundays beginning at about noon. Colorful tents, banner and costumes also may be seen.

While watching the tournament, visitors can usually feast on the group's medieval cookery. For 50 cents, one can buy a huge slab of bread and butter and goblet of lentil soup (homemade), or a piece of pork and apple pie, or a shishkabob.

The fighting sometimes is interrupted by a series of traditional games in which the women participate. These include tug-of-war, hide and seek (a man takes a lady's favor and she must find which man has it), blind man's bluff, women-in-a-circle (the women hold hands and the men try to break the circle and steal one of the women away), clinch-a-winch (partners try to kiss each other before a center person interferes), and poison (two people pull each other across a circle, trying to make the other knock over a bottle standing between them).

SAN DIEGO'S temperate weather is conducive to year-round meetings of the Society. Special events throughout the year include May-pole dancing in spring and major tournaments the last April and first of June.

The Society actually is a combination of smaller organizations — households and colleges. Households are, as the name suggests, friends who attend events as a family unit. They may concentrate on fighting or specialize in a certain craft. Colleges are equivalent to vocational options. The College of Heraldry studies protocol, provides m.c.'s for tournaments, and approves "devices" or insignia submitted by people for personal and household crests. The College of Bards writes poetry. And so on.

Members of the San Diego group — the Barony of Calafia — travel to neighboring cities for tournaments and special events. These other groups include the Barony of the Angels (Los Angeles), Dreilburgen (San Bernardino and Riverside), Canton of Eastern Gate (Orange County), and Barony of the Isles (Santa Barbara).

The Society, organized nine years ago by a group of friends having a party in Berkeley, has mushroomed into an international organization. San Diego's branch began with a Berkeley expatriate at San Diego State University.

The group still has its heaviest membership among the college set, perhaps due to the nostalgia craze among the young. However, new recruits are made at every lawn meeting as passersby become interested. Anyone is free to join the Society, the only requirement being that they show up in costume. The Barony of Calafia also requires a $1 insurance fee, which covers possible injuries during jousting.

Guests will enjoy the Magic Kingdom at a more leisurely pace. The new Pirates of the Caribbean attraction will have a special appeal, as will Treasure Island, Pioneer Hall and Star Jets all opened within recent months. The new Space Mountain adventure, presented by RCA, will debut in January.

All adventures and shows in the vast Magic Kingdom are open every day throughout the fall — as they are all year. Hours now are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. with an expanded daily schedule in effect Thanksgiving week.

• Halloween Weekend — Oct. 26-27. Spotlights the Magic Kingdom's Haunted Mansion. The Wicked Witch will be featured in daily parades. During Halloween Weekend, Magic Kingdom visitors will receive complimentary admission to the Haunted Mansion.

• Country Music Jubilee — Nov. 16. Top nationally-known entertainers will highlight the growing popularity of country and Western music.

• Thanksgiving Holidays — Nov. 28-30 — These traditional days of feasting and festivity will feature special entertainment as well as other unusual attractions. Hours will be extended Nov. 29-30. (9 a.m. to midnight)

Another major autumn event will be the 1974 Walt Disney World Golf Classic: National Team Championship Oct. 28-Nov. 3. The $250,000 event will attract top professional golfers from across the nation playing in pairs.

THE THREE hotels at Walt Disney World, the Contemporary Resort, the Polynesian Village, and Golf Resort, will be busy throughout the fall with special conventions and other group gatherings.

Guests discover reservations at the hotels and campgrounds easier to obtain.

Other regular events throughout the Vacation Kingdom include musical revues like the Diamond Horseshoe Revue and daily parades and appearances by Disney characters.

Walt Disney World's Christmas Holiday season will feature the annual Candlelight Processional and daily Holiday Parade premiering Dec. 20 - 21 and continuing through New Year's Day.

'Dickens of a Yule' for York, England

YORK, England (UPI) — It's going to be a "Dickens of a Christmas" at York. This year York is repeating a Dickensian Christmas program it introduced in 1973. Special package holidays over Christmas are being set up with that "Dickens of a Christmas" theme.

This year a 140-year-old stage coach will truck visitors around the ancient city; there also will be a posthorn-blowing contest, readings from Dickens' works, a chance to ride to hounds and a chance to sample the winning brew in a Yule grog-making contest for local housewives.

Notice of Public Hearing

Notice is hereby given that the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Wheeling will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on the 5th day of October, 1974, at the Village Hall in the Village of Wheeling, pursuant to a direction of the corporate authorities to consider amendments to the Zoning Ordinance relative to the following recommendations of the Plan Commission on planned developments:

1. Creation of a PD-3 zoning classification for single family attached units (to correspond with the R-3 zoning), to allow up to eight units per acre, subject to the approval of the Plan Commission.

2. PD-4 zoning classification will apply to multiple family only (to correspond with the R-4 zoning) and allow up to fourteen units per acre, subject to the approval of the Plan Commission.

3. In order to encourage single family construction, create a zoning classification to include a combination of apartment units, single family attached (townhouses, quadruminums, etc.) and single family detached homes. In the single family detached cluster development area, zero lot lines would be permitted. All plans shall be subject to the approval of the Plan Commission.

4. Define the PD-3 classification as single family attached units (townhouses, etc.) and PD-4 classification as multi-story buildings with apartments on each floor.

5. Single family attached units will not be allowed in a PD-4 zoning classification, therefore, land presently zoned PD-4 must be rezoned to PD-3 in order to be developed with single family attached condominiums.

6. Density in a planned development shall be non-cumulative.

7. Parking spaces in a planned development shall be distributed in such a manner that the number of spaces required for each individual building will be located within a reasonable walking distance of the entrance (or entrances) to that building. Two spaces per dwelling shall be provided with an additional twenty per cent of the number of units for guest parking. Individual driveways in single family attached dwellings shall not be used for computing guest parking.

8. A maximum floor area ratio of .32 shall be allowed for single family attached plan unit developments.

9. Contracts between the Village and developers of shopping centers to police the property, enforce parking regulations and control traffic, shall be mandatory.

10. What a development contains more than one zoning classification, the ordinance should clarify whether more than one recreational facility shall be required.

'It's the mayor's fault'

Mount Prospect taxes hit

Mount Prospect's tax rate keeps going up and the mayor says it's caused by inflation. He says it costs more to run households, businesses, to buy snowplows, vehicles, asphalt, etc.

Baloney! You show Mount Prospect residents where the items you mentioned, or food, durable and non-durable goods prices have risen 400 per cent during the past six years.

Residents should not forget that the village tax rate was .278 when your administration took over in 1969. The 1974 rate is .781 — up 280 per cent in five years. Next year it could well be over 1.10 if the trustees go ahead with the bond issue for a luxury library in this period of inflation. So this means a whopping increase in the village's tax rate of 400 per cent or more in the six years of the current administration. Is this befuddling to you?

letters to the editor

While Mount Prospect's rate skyrockets, our neighbors receive millions in federal funds for law enforcement programs and for projects that improve a community, i.e. beautification, open space development, construction of community projects, etc. Arlington Heights will receive $2,240,000 over a six-year period from HUD; Des Plaines will get $2,508,000. We in Mount Prospect get a good kick in the pocket book because of lack of having a three year community development program. Recently the news media stated the village manager rejected an idea to obtain LEAA funds for a police department program as "too absurd" to consider. Maybe it's time for residents to reflect on how absurd our elected and paid administration is. In addition to the 400 per cent increase by 1975 in our tax rate, you can also add a 100 per cent increase in the vehicle sticker fee — $7.50 to $15 — increased water rates, etc.

What can we do about it? Elect five trustees next year who are not a part of the administration, who are not robot voters on administration policies. Better yet, petition for a referendum to abolish home rule in Mount Prospect and get out the vote. With the skyrocketing tax rate in Mount Prospect, residents should have the opportunity to vote on bond issues and not have to blindly accept the mayor's decision on whether we should pay $15 a year more whether we like it or not.

Explains bathing cap policy

Dear Mr. Philip Meyers:

Your letter of July 10 on the bathing cap policy of the swimming pools has been brought to my attention.

I have discussed this subject again with our swimming pools manager and he has assured me that our policy of the last two years has not changed. He will in turn make sure that his assistant managers are following the policy to the letter.

Today's longer hair styles for men made the old rule that all women must wear bathing caps archaic and therefore, we changed the policy. Our policy has been that anyone, male or female, with hair short enough that it is not touching their shoulders do not have to wear a bathing cap. Anyone, male or female, with hair touching their shoulders must wear a bathing cap. This is called to the attention of both men and women. If you have any specific incidents when this rule has not been enforced, please let me know.

Bathing caps are necessary because longer hair tangles, builds up, and clogs in the catches in the filters. Shorter hair usually does not tangle and can be flushed out of the catches.

If you would like to discuss this or any other subject further, please feel free to call me or stop in the office. Thank you for your concern and thank you for your interest in the Palatine Park District.

She blasts apartment complex

A family of four was forced to move out of Algonquin Park Apartments because they stood up for their rights. Last June (1973) a child fell through the dryrotted, termite infested balcony at A.P.A. The management, Kimball Hill, Inc., denied any cause other than a "loose board." A resident of A.P.A. then took to the Fire Department and The Herald sections of balcony which were dry-rotted and termite infested. A page two story in The Herald on June 5 finally prompted Kimball Hill to commence repairs.

The same resident was forced to call the City Health Department after the management failed to repair or replace a defective water heater in the basement laundry facility which serves 18 families. There was no hot water for eight weeks. Residents of that building were told by Don Pian, general manager, to "use cold water." The day after the Health Department contacted the complex the situation was corrected.

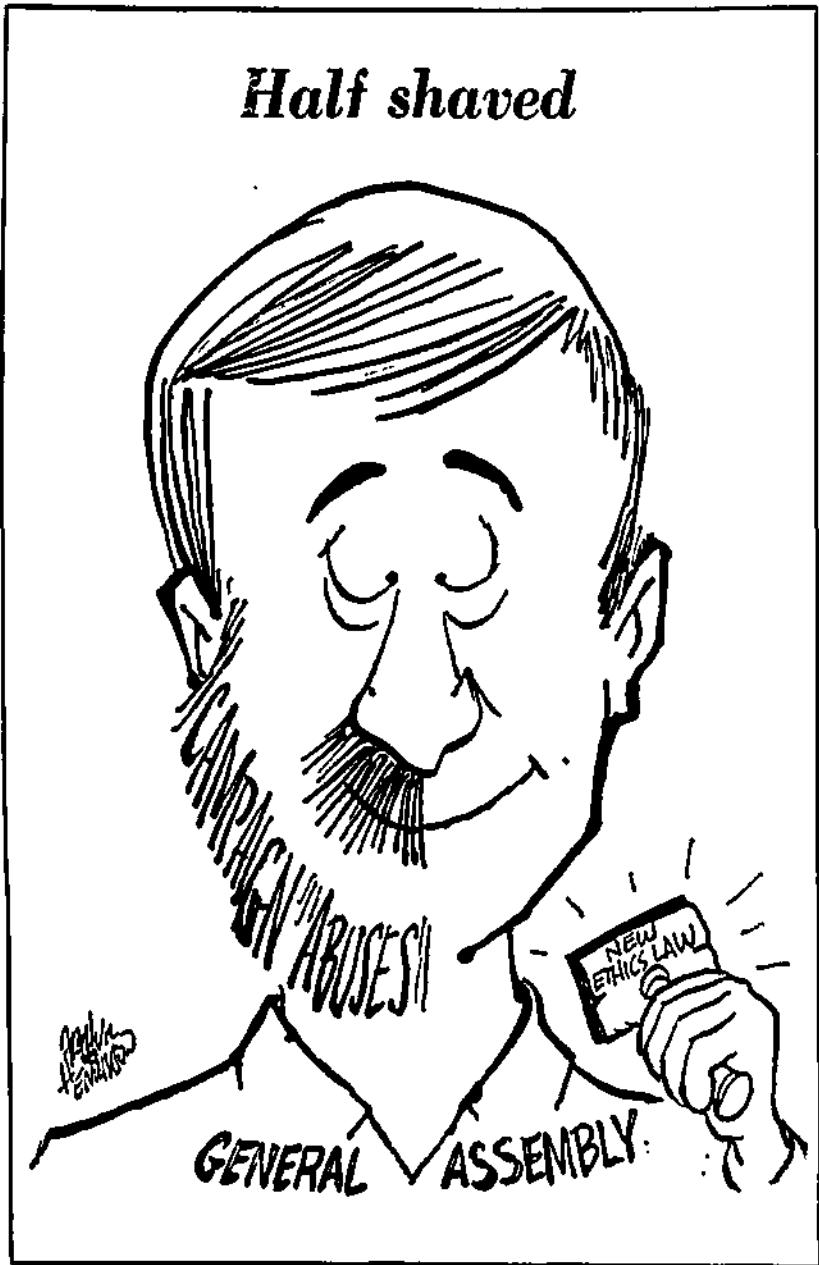

The same resident tried for almost two years with Donald Schindler of the Health Department to get the basements cleaned up. There is standing water in most of them. To date, nothing has been done.

The same resident went to renew his lease and was turned down. The family had paid their rent on time for 21 months, had put down a two month security deposit and had done nothing to damage the premises. Indeed, they did their best to improve the area.

The Meadow Trace Complex was taken to task for situations no worse than exist at Algonquin Park Apartments. Kimball Hill may own a lot of ground in Rolling Meadows, but does he own a lot of people too?

Catherine Benedict

EDITOR'S NOTE: Management at the apartment complex said the delay in repairing the faulty water heater last winter was due to the unavailability of needed materials. A spokesman for the management also denied that the party's lease was not renewed because of com-

They laud blood help

We wish to thank the Wheeling Community Blood Plan, sponsored by the Wheeling Jaycees, for the blood drawing at the Wheeling Village Hall on Aug. 18, in memory of our son, Bernard Sharkey Jr., who died of acute leukemia on Aug. 1. We also thank all the people who donated blood that day. We also thank the Beverly Blood Bank, with their blood-mobile at St. Pius V Chapel, Wheeling, on July 28; and all the people who came there and donated blood that day.

People have been so kind in helping us out with these blood donations, both before and after Bernie's death. You never know when you, or someone in your family will be in need of blood; as Bernie never thought he would need it, until he suddenly became ill, just two months before he passed away.

Please, if you possibly can, donate blood at the next blood drawing at the Wheeling High School cafeteria, on Sept. 21 and 22, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Phone Jim Bronson, program chairman, at 537-4777 for appointment. You will also be helping another young man who has leukemia.

God bless everyone who helped us.

She charges Herald belittled son's acts

An article in your paper on Aug. 27, upset me very much. It belittled my son's attitude toward a "good Samaritan" who found and turned in a money bag my son had lost.

The money was not my son's, but belonged to his employer. But realizing it was his mistake, he offered the man his own money as a reward and was told it wasn't necessary because the man was "ad he could be of help."

My son still planned to mail him a reward, which he has done, but my question is, "What was the rush?" Can't good deeds (on both parts in this case) take their natural course? A reward is wonderful anytime it is received and I think The Herald could have waited a little while before ridiculing someone. Or is news so slow these days?

Can't afford everything

She lauds The Herald

The Palatine Herald is getting to be quite a newspaper, from its days of 1940 — one time a week by mail the next day — to five days per week the same morning by carrier and practically to my door. I'm even getting to do the Crypto-quotes sometimes.

Very good reading. Dorothy Meyer's column is good.

You do get the news, too, fast and quite factual with any circumstance I have known. You do not lie.

For the Bicentennial: 1) Did it ever occur to anyone? "I cannot tell a lie. I cut down the cherry tree!" — George Washington. 2) 1974 — "I did not know about Watergate until March 21, 1973. — Richard Nixon.

I'm sure all the younger people don't lie, but it can become a way of life.

I'm glad our family was active in New York City in the early days.

Robert Morris, financier and a signer of the Declaration of Independence of Philadelphia nominated George Washington. Who nominated Richard Nixon? I should know, but I don't. However, he did get us out of Vietnam and that is really good.

I've been a civilian through World War I, World War II, Korean War and the Vietnam War. We've been in all the wars except the Korean War. I was born at the close of the Spanish American War (May 21, 1899 to be exact). Please, no more wars.

I was too young for World War I and too old for World War II and in World War I it wasn't funny to look at a service flag in your living room window.

The false Armistice Day and the real one were the highlights of events so far in my life. Both were spent in my native Chicago. The Loop was really something. Someone would buy a flag and another parade would start. The elevated train whistles and ticker tape were never duplicated. There has never been a day like that one, "The war to end all wars!"

In Lincoln's time, in New York City people were very anti-Lincoln. Many people. Mine weren't, as far as I know. But apparently Lincoln did not lie.

Miss Margaret Clark

P.S. Thanks for your good newspaper. Keep it going.

Urges more teacher pay

If teachers demanded annual salaries of a million dollars, the general public would be astounded. It would be impossible to pay such salaries; the public would find it equally impossible to justify the amount. Yet an honest appraisal of modern educational philosophy would find adequate justification if not the means.

The theme, always be positive, pervades teaching from undergraduate lectures and studies on to postgraduate work, and to counselling, institutes, and professional journals for the classroom teacher. A negative approach to anything in teaching is condemned as fruitless at best, destructive at worst. Yet to those who retain a faith in Judeo-Christian scripture and tradition, the classroom teacher is expected to perform his duties

Paramedics of Buffalo Grove, thanks.

Last month my husband was stricken with a heart attack. The paramedics were on the scene within a few minutes.

I can't say enough for those highly skilled men. They did everything possible to save his life, they were so wonderful to me that I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to those men. Our entire family is very grateful.

It's tough here, too

A wide swath of citizens in Arlington Heights are too pooped to keep their eyes open long enough to read about Pan Am's pitiful problems, too deafened to hear the glorious paeans broadcast by the airlines, and too weak to scrub away the heavenly oils from their windows, lawns, gardens and their pets' fur coats.

Mostly they are collapsed in a heap thinking evilly about the office wars writing proclamations under various headings: Air Pollution Control; C.A.B., Board of Health, and so on. And on.

Never mind putting teeth into the laws already on the books! Just, please, give us four whole hours sleep all at once in one night, even . . .

Pharmacy applauded

The morning of August 12 I had the unfortunate experience of waking up to a sick baby with a temperature of 105 degrees. Upon calling my physician, he asked to have my pharmacist call in for a prescription.

At random, I chose Chronicare Pharmacy, Mr. Carl Cohen. When I asked how long I'd have to wait for delivery, he said the Wheeling pharmacy opened later and I'd have a little wait. After mentioning how ill my son was and telling him I needed the medicine as soon as possible, he promised to have it delivered quickly. Not only did Mr. Cohen deliver my medicine within the hour, but he had his wife get dressed early to make the prompt delivery.

I am so impressed by such service. Mr. Cohen and his wife made me feel as if they truly cared and wanted to help, which they did.

I am very appreciative of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cohen of Chronicare Pharmacy.

Reader views VP selection

Dear Americans:

I wonder if President Ford was appealing for our prayers to appoint a vice president who would deny man his alienable right of life and the pursuit of happiness or the murder of unborn children, also the sterilizing of men and women. If so, my prayers are not forthcoming. Senator Percy does. I have not heard from Representative Crane.

I also wonder if they have any intention of putting Christ back in Christmas.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Poll of opinion on facilities planned

Park district referendum reported 1, 2 years away

by JOHN MAES
The Buffalo Grove Park District, faced with dwindling funds and anticipated growth, is expected to conduct a referendum to raise money for park development.

Park District Director Stan Crosland indicated park officials probably will seek voter approval of a general-obligation bond issue in one to two years.

In the meantime, the district plans to poll residents later this year to determine what they think of park facilities and programs and what they feel is needed. The results are to be used to develop recreational programs as well as to plan the referendum.

CROSLAND WAS unable to estimate how large the referendum would be, but estimated 90 per cent of the funds raised would be used to convert "raw, undeveloped land into viable park sites."

Some of the land is not even in the park district yet, but Crosland said that "in about two years, the needs will be so self-evident that the public will demand these facilities be developed."

He said the growth projections for Buffalo Grove are going to make necessary acquisition and development of park sites requiring "an extraordinary number of dollars that can only be obtained from funds in a bond referendum."

"I would hope that the public would wish to respond to the growing needs as growth starts appearing," he said.

"THE PARK DISTRICT feels that between now and seven years that if an area calls for a park, we'd like to see it."

The park district currently owns 62 acres, an amount that officials contend is insufficient to meet the needs of the village population. If the upcoming census indicates the town has grown to 19,000 residents as expected, the park district should own at least 190 acres, Crosland said.

The park district is still using approximately 25 per cent of the funds remaining from a 1971 referendum that allowed the sale of $1.25 million in general obligation bonds.

That money, however, is earmarked to cover outstanding costs on a number of projects including the indoor and outdoor swimming pools, several recently installed tennis courts and facilities at other Buffalo Grove parks.

CROSLAND SAID one reason for holding off on another referendum is to complete the work with funds provided for in the previous vote.

"It would be poor practice," he said, "until we have completed the project from the initial referendum."

The park board supports a village board resolution asking builders and de-

Or face reapplication process

Hospital branch plans must get OK by Oct. 1

by JOE FRANZ
Time has become a critical factor for the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Hospital to be located between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

If plans for the $11.3 million facility are not approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health by Oct. 1, hospital backers may have to reapply and could have difficulty obtaining approval.

According to a new state law, any hospital that does not have final approval by Oct. 1 will have to go through the state's online planning process.

Plans for the satellite facility already have received preliminary approval and state officials are now reviewing final engineering and architectural plans.

NORMAN DAVIS, a consultant to the hospital, said Monday he does not expect difficulty in gaining state approval by Oct. 1. State officials would not say when they will finish reviewing plans, but one architect predicted final approval could come as early as next week.

Davis admitted, however, if approval does not come before Oct. 1, and his clients have to reapply, there could be problems in gaining state approval under the new legislation.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show the state that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

have difficulty proving the need for a hospital because of the formula that will be used by the state."

State officials have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Buffer Grove area because several area hospitals are not filled to capacity.

WILLIAM EWING, health planning associate for the state Comprehensive Health Planning Division, said the ramifications of the new law will not be known until a state board is appointed to interpret the legislation.

Davis said if state approval comes before Oct. 1, his clients plan to break ground for the new 228-bed hospital by late fall.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling and across from Carl Sandburg School. Property for the project includes two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $500,000.

PATRICK DEMMON, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital eventually will be annexed to Wheeling. The property cannot be annexed now because it does not adjoin Wheeling's boundaries.

Davis Monday said the facility will be called Wheeling-Buffer Grove Community Hospital. Hospital officials recently said the facility would be called Buffalo Grove Community Hospital.

The facility is designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Man seized in robbery of National

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man armed with a starter pistol was apprehended by Buffalo Grove police shortly after a hold-up Monday afternoon at a National food store in Arlington Heights.

Thomas P. Harvey, 730 Beau Dr., was charged with armed robbery. Police said he had $357 and a starter pistol that used only blanks in his possession when he was arrested.

Arlington Heights police said Harvey demanded money from the service desk at the grocery store, 100 E. Rand Rd., and left with $357 in a paper bag.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police saw a car matching the radioed description of the robber's vehicle northbound on Buffalo Grove Road at 2:12 p.m., minutes after the holdup.

Gozdecki chased the car to McHenry Road near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling, where he was assisted by Patrolmen Dennis Cassidy and Jack Koenig of Wheeling police in making the arrest.

Bond for Harvey was set at $10,000. He is to appear Oct. 4 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Haisley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Haisley, 23, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go?"

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Circus brings back the past

The circus came to town last weekend and with it came all the traditional thrills of the old-time tent circus.

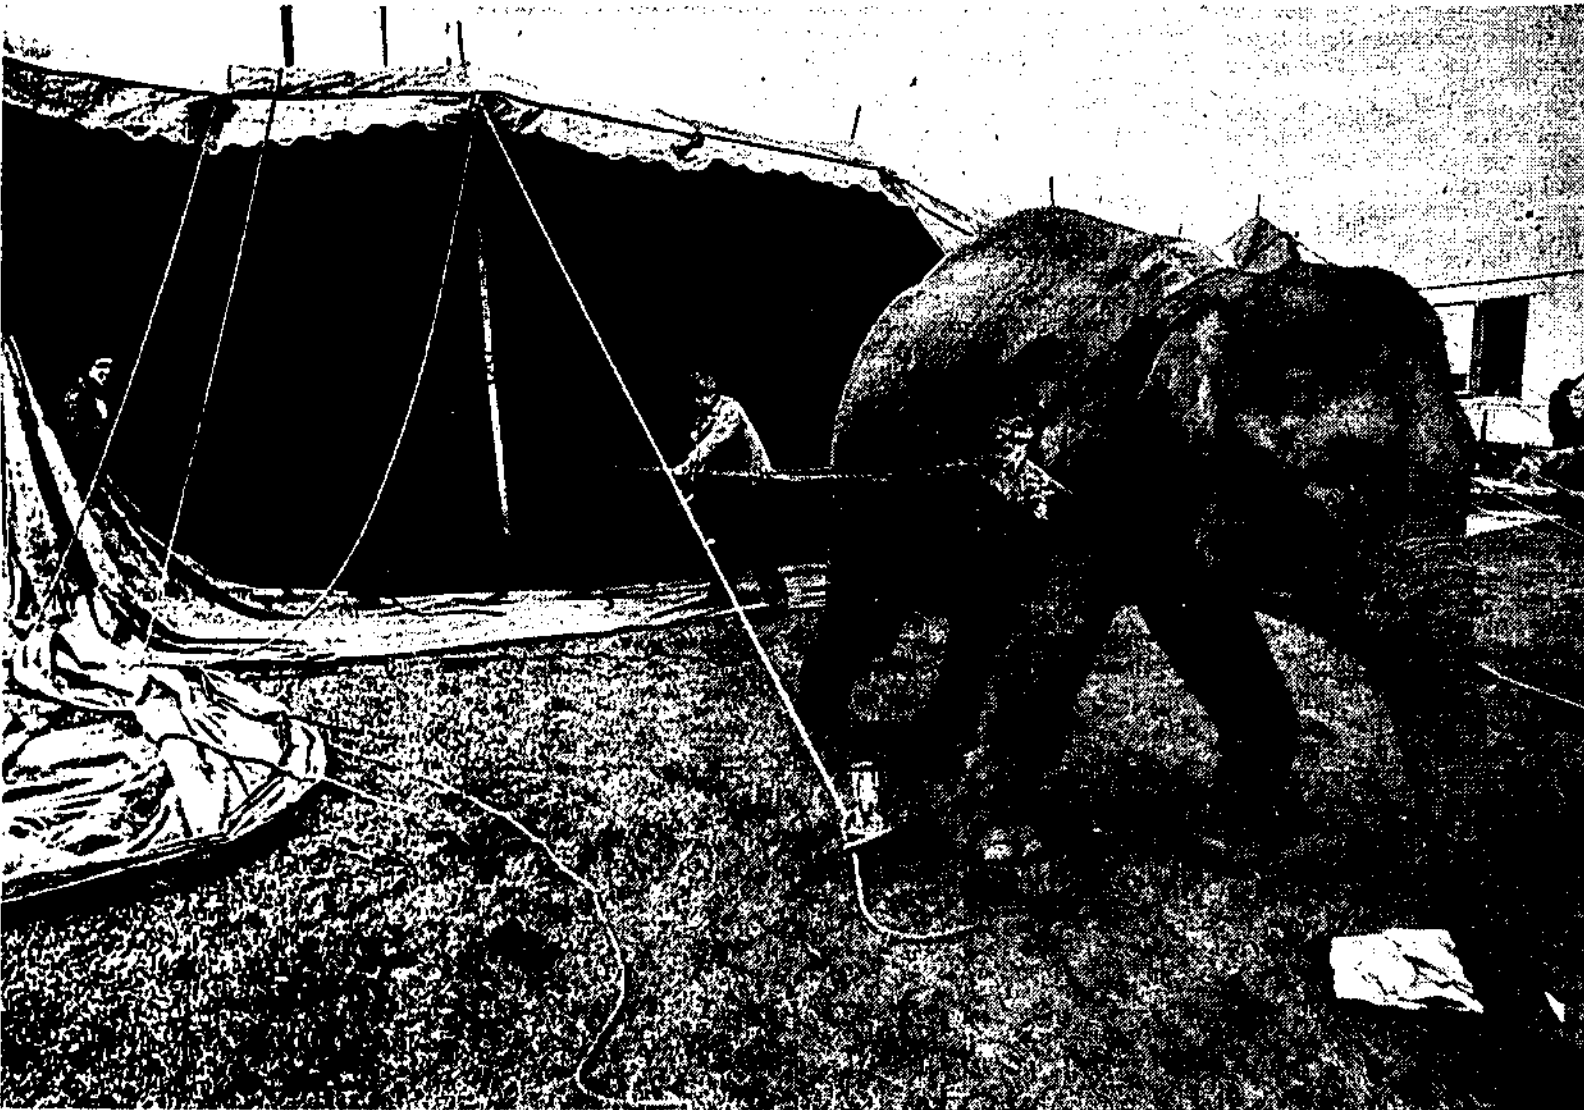

And just as fascinating as the circus acts themselves was the rigging of the tent Friday morning at Heritage Park.

The first show of the George Matthews Great London Circus was 4 p.m. Friday. Residents watched talented circus artists and animals perform. The last show was Sunday.

A circus tent is really nothing but a king-size sheet.

It took a crew of about 125 persons to erect the circus tent at Heritage Park.

Putting up the tent took patience and muscle.

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $300,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney & Co. in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

WHIP meeting Wednesday at school

The Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) will have a meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd.

Anthony Dien, director of conservation for the State of Illinois, will speak on "land use in the local community."

"Mr. Dien is familiar with the Wheeling area and should provide us with some interesting material on state and local conservation," said WHIP chairman Harold Fagan.

The meeting is open to the public and WHIP officials urge residents and community leaders to attend.

Surveillance system may be checked

An electronic consultant may be hired by Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to check into a surveillance system installed in schools last year by Temptron Inc.

The school board canceled an $85,000 contract with Temptron in July, saying it appeared the company could not get the system to function properly.

The system, designed to prevent fire and vandalism in schools, was supposed to have been installed last September. School officials say that although the components are installed and are capable of functioning separately, the unit often fails when it works as a whole.

Recognizing that the district might be involved in a lawsuit with Temptron over the canceled contract, the board requested that the administration look into hiring a consultant to give a professional opinion of the system.

ONE OF THE maintenance men in the district said that some of the wiring in the system does not meet standards set by the district or agreed to in the contract.

Representatives from Temptron, the district and the bonding company, Insurance Co. of North America, discussed the controversy over the system last week.

Representatives of INA said it would not step in and take over the installation of the system because it has not been proven that Temptron broke its contract or is financially incapable of finishing the job.

Board member Jeremiah Crise said that if the wiring is defective or does not meet the contract requirements, INA would have to reevaluate its position.

Extension granted to car dealership

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday night granted Grand Spaulding Dodge an extension until October, 1975, for completion of its local dealership.

Grand Spaulding was supposed to complete the facility, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, by Oct. 11 of this year, but Howard Alterman, attorney for the company, said, "With the intervention of the cement truckdrivers strike, our plans were set back several months."

"Depending on the severity of the winter," the dealership may be open for business next May or June, Alterman told the village board.

THE ZONING ALLOWING construction of the dealership is set to expire next month. So far, only the foundation work of the new building has been completed.

The board also voted to oppose the rezoning of the Bugner Farm property near Busch and Weiland roads in Lake County. The board is opposing the request because a developer, Chesterfield Corp., wants to construct 461 townhouses on the 43-acre site.

Chesterfield has applied for a rezoning from Lake County. The county zoning board of appeals recently recommended that the change be approved. Final action is pending before the county board.

In a resolution passed unanimously, the trustees said the population density of the proposed development conflicts with the village comprehensive land use plan for the area.

The board also said Chesterfield does not plan adequate donations to local school and park districts and is not developing public or private park facilities in its project. Trustees also expressed concern about increased traffic hazards in the area on Weiland Road near Aptakisic Road and Tripp Elementary School.

The village board also approved a $1,000 annual contribution toward the salary of the executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

Crosland said donations are one means of acquiring land, but huge sums of money may still be needed to get the land in shape for general recreation.

However, the commitment of money from the previous referendum coupled with late-arriving tax revenues has left the park district with little in the way of funds for new land development projects, according to Crosland.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Botte favors joining CHA appeal

Housing panel to consider U.S. rent subsidy program

by STEVE BROWN

The question of city involvement in any type of low and moderate-income housing program is expected to be the major topic of discussion at the Des Plaines Housing Commission's meeting next week.

Chairman Joseph Botte said Monday that the commission will continue to look at the federal government's revised rent-subsidy program and other recent developments in the housing situation in the area. The commission will meet Sept. 28.

Botte said he may ask the commission to recommend to the Des Plaines City Council that the city join in the appeal of the recent federal court decision which will require the Chicago Housing Authority to build low-income housing in the suburb.

Botte said he would ask that a "friend of the court" brief would be filed in the Appellate Court decision appeal that is being brought by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and will be made to the U.S. Supreme Court.

BOTTE SAID he believes the recent court decision may be unconstitutional. He added that he would rather see the city work out some type of housing plan on its own rather than have a program forced upon it.

The commission, formed earlier this year, had begun a study of the federal rent subsidy program last spring, but suspended meetings during the summer.

Botte indicated the commission will continue to review this program and determine what recommendations can be made to the city.

The permanent housing commission was formed as one of major recommendation of a special year-long study of the housing needs in Des Plaines.

In the group's first meetings, Botte recommended that the current status of federally funded housing programs should be one of the main priorities of the commission.

BOTTE HAS SAID he would rather see a local program devised rather than something forced upon Des Plaines and other suburbs by "elitists who will make the rules for mixing different minorities and classes, but not live in the situations they create."

The city's commission is also expected to take up the question of what position to take on the recently enacted Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Under the legislation, Des Plaines could be eligible for more than $2.5 million over the next six years if it devises a specific housing assistance plan. The funds can be used for a variety of public improvement projects that are related to upgrading housing standards.

Oppose class consolidation

Actions at Byrd School bring parent protest

Parents and teachers alike turned out at a meeting of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night to protest the consolidation of classes and the transfer of a teacher from Byrd School in Elk Grove Village.

About a dozen parents and an equivalent number of teachers attended the meeting to object to the dropping of one first grade class and the switching of students into other first and second grade classes.

A lower-than-expected enrollment in the first grade forced the consolidation to classes which included a combination of first and second graders in one class, said Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent for instruction. Enrollment at Byrd School, 265 Wellington Ave., fell 30 short of a predicted 519 students.

PARENTS AT THE meeting complained that the changes were made almost two weeks into the school year, after youngsters were becoming accustomed to their classroom assignments.

The parents also expressed concern over the way the shift was executed. Word of the impending change apparently leaked out before official notice and explanation to parents by letter could be made, leading to rumor and confusion.

The board of education took no official action on the protest following an hour-long discussion that appeared to be resolved by administrative explanations.

Supt. James Erviti said the classroom switches could not have been made until the district's "six-day" attendance figures were compiled to determine average attendance. He said that for the most part, district attendance projections were accurate. The district reports an enrollment of 10,850 students.

Slight enrollment variations forced the change in assignment of two of the district's 530 teachers, including one from Byrd School, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Two charged with battery after crash

Two Des Plaines men involved in a traffic accident Saturday were charged with battery for striking a passenger in the car which their auto hit from the rear, according to police.

Robert Kuczynski, 21, of 827 Ingram Pl., and Richard E. Sartori, 22, of 325 Denver Dr., were charged with battery against Raymond L. Haubner, 36, of 333 Seeger Rd., Arlington Heights, police said.

Sartori was also charged with possession of marijuana, which police discovered on the man when he was brought to the station and searched. Kuczynski was also charged with unlawful use of a weapon when police found a bludgeon on the seat of Kuczynski's car, according to police reports.

According to police the incident occurred about 3:30 p.m. Saturday when the Kuczynski car struck an auto driven by Debra A. DeMarie, 24, of 320 Crest Ave., Elk Grove Village, near the intersection of Pennsylvania Avenue and Springfield Terrace.

Police said the two suspects began striking Haubner after he got out of the DeMarie car, in which he was a passenger. Haubner was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated for a broken nose and received 20 stitches for facial cuts, police said.

Kuczynski was charged with improper lane usage for sideswiping the DeMarie car from the opposite direction.

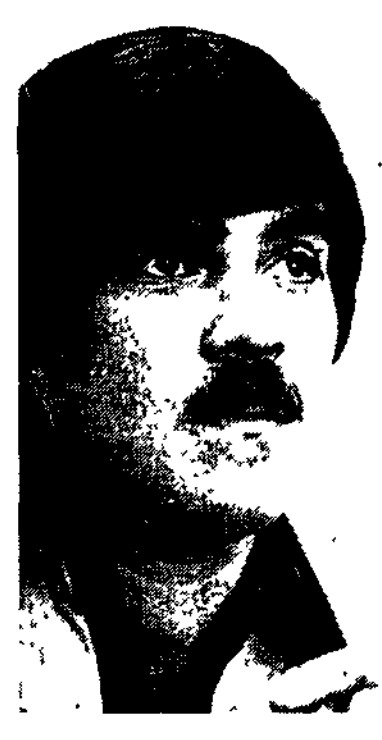

Kuczynski is scheduled to appear in Des Plaines court Oct. 10 to answer the traffic citations. He and Sartori are slated to appear in Des Plaines court Oct. 31 to answer the battery, marijuana possession and unlawful weapon use charges.

Controversy between village, Centex blamed

Some stores won't sell furnaces in Elk Grove Village

by JERRY THOMAS

While officials of Elk Grove Village and Centex Homes Corp. argue responsibility for the massive number of furnace failures in local homes, residents are having problems buying new furnaces.

Representatives of Sears Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery Ward and Co. said Monday that they will not sell new furnaces to Elk Grove Village residents.

Spokesmen for both companies said this was due to the controversy between the village and Centex Homes Corp. about the premature failure in more than 1,700 homes.

While Sears officials were reluctant to comment on the situation, the salesman from the firm's Woodfield store told a

Herald reporter posing as a village resident that he "was not selling to Elk Grove Village residents until the village and builder settle an argument of code compliance."

HERALD REPORTERS talked to six persons in Sears' corporate office Monday but no one would comment on the situation.

Village officials met with Sears representatives Monday, but would not disclose what was discussed.

Thomas Rettenbacher, village building commissioner, said he had been told by several residents that Sears had turned them away when they attempted to purchase new furnaces. He added that salesmen apparently were turning down the business because they do not know how much to charge for installation.

A salesman at the Woodfield store said Monday that the typical deal is "$160 problem free installation" in addition to the cost of the furnace. He would not quote a price on the installation in an Elk Grove Village home.

Rettenbacher said Sears, like any other contractor, could make installation estimates after making an inspection. Other local heating contractors have been selling and installing furnaces since the problem was first disclosed.

He said all we are asking Sears or any other major retailer to do is obtain a permit to install new furnaces according to the fire code.

Dennis Rohlinger, manager of the furnace sales department at Montgomery Ward's store in Randhurst, Mount Prospect, said, "We are trying to stay out of there (Elk Grove Village) because of the expense of repairs that would go along with the installation of new furnaces."

HE ADDED THAT the store has not had many calls from Elk Grove Village residents. He said installation of a furnace might cost as much as $700 once all the repairs are made. Normal furnace installation cost about $200, he said.

A village financed study using information supplied by the building department from more than 800 furnace and house inspections said inadequate venting to the furnace room and too-short rooftop vent pipes are contributing to furnace failure.

Of the 800 homes inspected, only 36 per cent were labeled as "acceptable" by the village. Residents who wish to replace their defective furnace must obtain a village will meet tonight to discuss relations.

Officials from both Centex and the village will meet tonight to discuss the responsibility for repair of building code violations which the village maintains contribute to premature furnace failure.

The Centex representatives are expected tonight either to accept or disclaim responsibility for the building and furnace code violations which exist in an estimated 1,700 homes.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. in village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALITY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

Cutback of funds looms

Oakton College campus could face a setback

Construction of Oakton Community College's permanent campus may be delayed if the Illinois Community College Board upholds a staff recommendation on releasing funds for preliminary work on the college site.

The ICCB will meet Friday in Macomb. At that meeting the board will discuss a staff recommendation that Oakton be allowed to use $500,000 of the money it has set aside for the campus for planning.

The $500,000 is cut from $1.5 million the college had asked for to finance planning and preliminary work on the college site, including installation of utilities and preparing the site for construction of a road, said Oakton Pres. William Koehnline.

The money to be used for the preliminary work, Koehnline said, is part of the $4 million set aside from the college's budget for use on the campus. The college also will get money from the state to finance 75 per cent of the campus construction.

KOEHNLIN said that if college officials are not given permission to spend the $1.5 million to get started on site development "it means the construction phase of the campus is postponed indefinitely." He said the college had planned to get the installation of utilities and preparation for the road finished by the end of 1975, with construction of the college buildings scheduled to start in 1976, when state funds become available.

"If the state delays any of the preliminary work until after state funds are available, it will mean a delay on the whole project," Koehnline said.

He said he will meet with ICCB staff members before the board's meeting Friday, but right now does not plan to make a special plea to the board if the staff refuses to change its recommendation.

"We've had to make a special plea so many times that I do not advocate our doing it unless we have the feeling it will be effective," he said.

Oakton's site is located along the Des Plaines River in unincorporated Maine Township. The college has been negotiating to buy the land from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese.

Parks seek contributions for tree fund

The Des Plaines Park District tree fund, in its third year of existence, is continuing to seek contributors to raise money to purchase and plant shade trees in city parks.

The fund has netted more than $7,000 in donations of which $5,000 has been spent to purchase about 300 trees for planting in city parks. Robert Kunkel, park district director, said all the city's parks are in need of more shade trees and the tree fund has been instrumental in providing money to replace and supplement park trees.

The park district is seeking minimum contributions of $5 but Kunkel said amounts less than this will be accepted. The park district director said contributions as high as $100 have been donated.

In some cases a person will ask for the purchase of a certain type of tree to be placed in a certain spot and pay the entire cost of purchase and planting, Kunkel said.

A tree 3 inches by 4 inches in diameter and 20 feet tall costs between $50 and $80, Kunkel said.

Contributions are tax deductible and the park district will issue receipts for all donations.

For more information on the program call the park district office at 298-6106.

Man seized in robbery of National

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man armed with a starter pistol was apprehended by Buffalo Grove police shortly after a hold-up Monday afternoon at a National food store in Arlington Heights.

Thomas P. Harvey, 730 Beau Dr., was charged with armed robbery. Police said he had $357 and a starter pistol that used only blanks in his possession when he was arrested.

Arlington Heights police said Harvey demanded money from the service desk at the grocery store, 100 E. Rand Rd., and left with $357 in a paper bag.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police saw a car matching the radioed description of the robber's vehicle northbound on Buffalo Grove Road at 2:12 p.m., minutes after the holdup.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Seek to avoid Centex homes hassle

by JERRY THOMAS

While officials of Elk Grove Village and Centex Homes Corp. argue responsibility for the massive number of furnace failures in local homes, residents are having problems buying new furnaces.

Representatives of Sears Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery Ward and Co. said Monday that they will not sell new furnaces to Elk Grove Village residents.

Spokesmen for both companies said this was due to the controversy between the village and Centex Homes Corp. about the premature failure in more than 1,700 homes.

While Sears officials were reluctant to comment on the situation, the salesman from the firm's Woodfield store told a Herald reporter posing as a village resident that he "was not selling to Elk Grove Village residents until the village and builder settle an argument of code compliance."

HERALD REPORTERS talked to six persons in Sears' corporate office Monday but no one would comment on the situation.

Village officials met with Sears representatives Monday, but would not disclose what was discussed.

Thomas Reitenbacher, village building commissioner, said he had been told by several residents that Sears had turned them away when they attempted to purchase new furnaces. He added that salesmen apparently were turning down the business because they do not know how much to charge for installation.

A salesman at the Woodfield store said Monday that the typical deal is "$160 problem free installation" in addition to the cost of the furnace. He would not quote a price on the installation in an Elk Grove Village home.

Reitenbacher said Sears, like any other contractor, could make installation estimates after making an inspection. Other local heating contractors have been selling and installing furnaces since the problem was first disclosed.

He said all we are asking Sears or any other major retailer to do is obtain a permit to install new furnaces according to the fire code.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Haisley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Haisley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go?"

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Oppose class consolidation

Actions at Byrd School bring parent protest

Parents and teachers alike turned out at a meeting of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night to protest the consolidation of classes and the transfer of a teacher from Byrd School in Elk Grove Village.

About a dozen parents and an equivalent number of teachers attended the meeting to object to the dropping of one first grade class and the switching of students into other first and second grade classes.

A lower-than-expected enrollment in the first grade forced the consolidation to classes which included a combination of first and second graders in one class, said Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent for instruction. Enrollment at Byrd School, 285 Wellington Ave., fell 30 short of a predicted 510 students.

PARENTS AT THE meeting complained that the changes were made almost two weeks into the school year, after youngsters were becoming accustomed to their classroom assignments.

The parents also expressed concern over the way the shift was executed. Word of the impending change apparently leaked out before official notice and explanation to parents by letter could be made, leading to rumor and confusion.

The board of education took no official action on the protest following an hour-long discussion that appeared to be resolved by administrative explanations.

Supt. James Ervill said the classroom switches could not have been made until the district's "six-day" attendance figures were compiled to determine average attendance. He said that for the most part, district attendance projections were accurate. The district reports an enrollment of 10,850 students.

Slight enrollment variations forced the change in assignment of two of the district's 530 teachers, including one from Byrd School, said Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Man seized in robbery of National

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man armed with a starter pistol was apprehended by Buffalo Grove police shortly after a hold-up Monday afternoon at a National food store in Arlington Heights.

Thomas P. Harvey, 730 Beau Dr., was charged with armed robbery. Police said he had $357 and a starter pistol that used only blanks in his possession when he was arrested.

Arlington Heights police said Harvey demanded money from the service desk at the grocery store, 100 E. Rand Rd., and left with $357 in a paper bag.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police saw a car matching the radioed description of the robber's vehicle northbound on Buffalo Grove Road at 2:12 p.m., minutes after the holdup.

Gozdecki chased the car to McHenry Road near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling, where he was assisted by Patrolmen Dennis Cassidy and Jack Koenig of Wheeling police in making the arrest.

Bond for Harvey was set at $10,000. He is to appear Oct. 4 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the spe-

Lions slate Candy Day for Blind here Oct. 11

Elk Grove Village Industrial Lions Club members and their families will conduct a Lions Club Candy Day for the Blind Oct. 11.

This month the Industrial Lions Club members are seeking people or businesses willing to underwrite the cost of a case of candy. The Lions give away candy rolls in exchange for contributions for the program they support to aid the blind and visually handicapped.

Anyone interested in contributing to the Lions candy fund may contact Terence Keenan, chairman of Candy Day for the Blind, or make checks payable to Bank of Elk Grove, 100 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Lions Candy Day for the Blind in Illinois is held annually by local clubs to aid the visually handicapped through Candy Day receipts.

The funds help provide free education to hundreds of blind persons through the service of Hadley School for the Blind. Funds are also used to train leader dog teams, provide a recorded message service and send visually handicapped to Illinois Camp Lion.

Mom turned volunteer entertainer

'Child's smile makes it worthwhile'

by JILL BETTNER

Right in the middle of a television soap opera a few weeks ago, Elk Grove Village housewife Sally Zerm got up from her chair, went to the telephone and dialed Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

The young mother told the switchboard operator that kids in the pediatrics ward might enjoy the songs she played on the guitar and sang at home for her own two children and those of neighbors.

"I felt like hanging up when I realized I only knew five songs," she said with a laugh, recalling the conversation. "I learned all the Sesame Street songs in one week."

Far from being a professional musician, Mrs. Zerm, 1360 Cumberland Circle West, doesn't even read music. She picks up songs by ear and says she really doesn't play the guitar, merely strums it. "You know — like Mr. Greenjeans on 'Captain Kangaroo,'" she said.

BUT MRS. ZERM knew the kids at Alexian Brothers wouldn't mind and decided to do what she could to make being in the hospital a little more fun for them.

"I was trembling when I left home to go the first time," she said. "But I knew for them it was me or nothing and if I was in the hospital, I know I'd rather have me than nothing."

Several years ago, Mrs. Zerm had entertained senior citizens at nursing homes with her father, whose cigar-stained guitar and love of music she inherited. She figured, she said, playing and singing for children would be similar.

"Kids and old people are the same — they're both very honest and that's why I like them," she said. "Kids don't put on airs because they don't know they should and old people don't because they know they don't have to anymore."

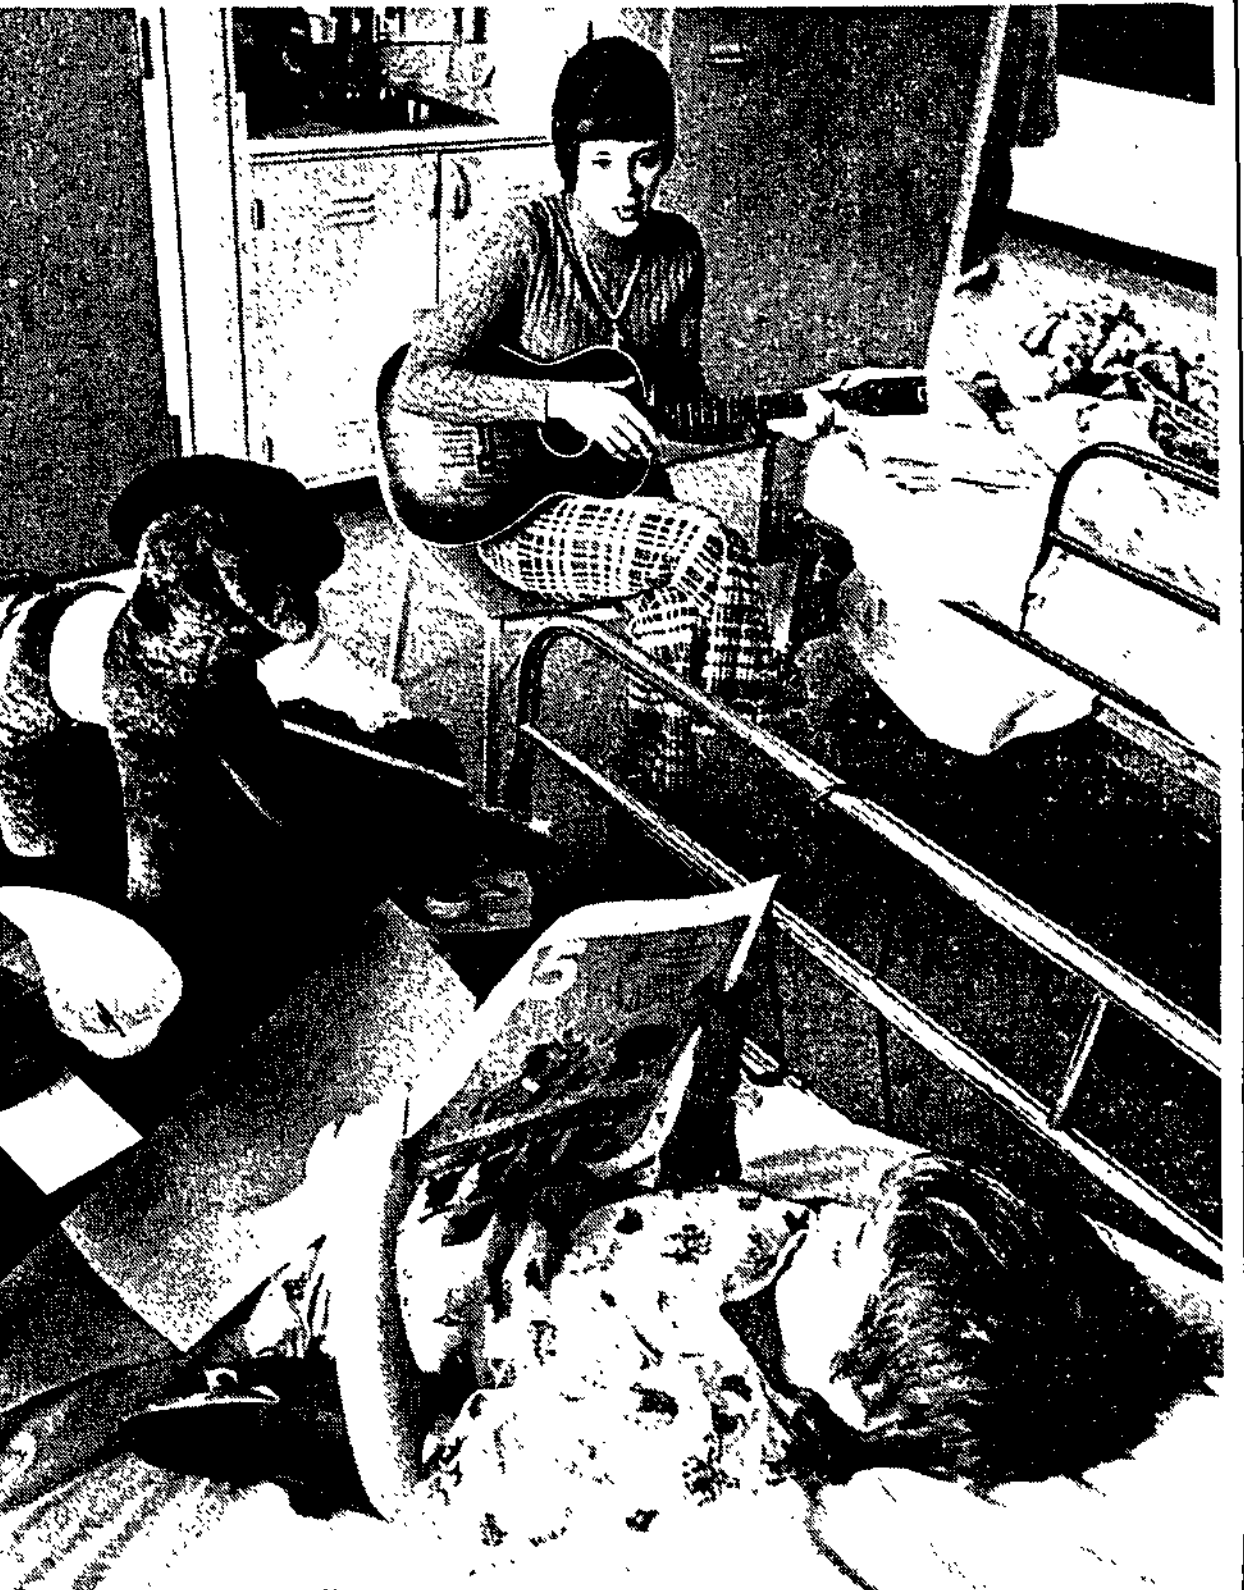

Mrs. Zerm probably likes honesty because she's straightforward. Her only reason for wanting to entertain children at Alexian Brothers is that she loves kids and gets a kick out of making them happy with her music.

ONCE A WEEK, she packs up her dad's well-used, four-string Stella guitar, song sheets that came inside a Sesame Street album and a notebook filled with lyrics to songs she's picked up over the years (they range from folk to jazz to country and western) and goes into the pediatrics ward looking for smiles.

"Children don't judge you like adults," she said. "When you walk in there, they either like you or they don't and nine times out of 10, if they don't, it's because they're afraid. They don't really know if I'm coming in to sing a song or give them a shot and it takes a while with some."

Mrs. Zerm admitted that because she cares so much about children, she's a little worried about becoming attached to some of the kids or becoming upset about those who are seriously ill.

Starting the week that Evel Knievel made his attempted jump over the Snake River Canyon in Idaho, Mrs. Zerm said most of the children

PLAYING AND SINGING for children in the pediatrics ward at Alexian Brothers Medical Center is a treat both to kids and Elk Grove Village housewife Sally Zerm. Mrs. Zerm is a volunteer who visits the hospital once a week to entertain the children and loves it. Smiles are what she's looking for each time and here she plays a "Sesame Street" favorite while Barbara Vicari of Addison follows along with a songbook.

she saw on her first visit two weeks ago had broken bones — probably from imitating the motorcycle daredevil on their bicycles. But one 22-month-old girl had been hit by a car and was semiconscious. Her heart went out to the child, she said, and she and her husband, Jerry, are praying for her recovery.

"I KNOW A LOT of people say I just don't want to get involved because we all see a lot of adults who are sick, but sick children can be heartbreaking," she said. "I wasn't sure how I'd take it either, but when you think about it, if anybody needs cheering up it's kids in a hospital."

She added that she hopes more women like herself, who might be hesitant about feeling that they have something to offer, will make an effort to find out if they're needed.

"Instead of moping in the house or going out and getting a job to earn some extra money for a new bedroom set or something, I'd like to see more people do volunteer things."

"I really think I'm lucky," she continued. "I can go in there, put my songbook down on a kid's bed, get right up to his little freckled face and play peek-a-boo or something and sing him a song and see him change from being all gloomy to happy. In my opinion, if you can make just one kid smile, it's worthwhile."

Nostalgia film planned

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," the 1939 movie featuring James Stewart as a naive and honest new U.S. senator who triumphs over corruption in high places, is the first film in the nostalgia movie series showing this fall at the Elk Grove Village Public Library.

The movie will be shown Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the library. The library will close at 5 p.m. on Friday, so movie-goers should use the meeting room entrance. Admission is free.

Other films in the series, which explores the theme of power, will be "Citizen Kane," "Public Enemy" and "Casablanca." The series is part of the autumn Arts Guild calendar of events.

Library to present experimental films

Experimental films exploring the cinema as an art medium will be presented from 3 to 9 p.m. Sept. 26 at the Elk Grove Village Public Library. The films made up a special invitational showing at the 1974 American Film Festival in New York this spring. The two-hour program is touring the country, and is made available to the library through the Chicago Film Council.

The films concern themselves with sheer artistic effect. In "Angular Momentum," the cinematographer contrasts colors as they rotate around the entire spectrum, to the sound track of Moog-generated white noise. In "Aves" the flights of frigate birds and flamingos are used to achieve illusions of space and flow.

The film "Tiger Balm," named after the famous park in Hong Kong, creates the essence of a garden with sensuous and lyrical imagery.

The program will be shown continuously in the lower level meeting room.

County clerk Kusper to speak at meeting

Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper will be the guest speaker next Tuesday at the Elk Grove Village Assn. of Industry and Commerce luncheon meeting at noon in the Navarone Steak House, 1905 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Anyone interested in attending may contact the association at 20 Lively Blvd. by calling 437-7944.

New Animal Hospital opens in Old Town area

Dr. Thomas V. Johnson, Jr. is pleased to announce the opening of Olde Towne Animal Hospital at 109 South Roselle Road in Schaumburg. The animal hospital is located just south of Schaumburg Road and across the street from the Town Square Shopping Center. This area has been designated by the Village of Schaumburg as the Old Town district. In accordance with this plan, Olde Towne Animal Hospital is modeled after the plans of a late 18th century Colonial bake shop.

Hospital hours will be 9-12 and 2-30-6 Monday through Friday, 9-1 Saturday, closed Wednesdays and Sundays. A 24 hour telephone is available at 894-2060. Doctor's hours will be by appointment. Dr. Johnson graduated from Iowa State University and interned one year at the Animal Medical Center in New York City. He has been in small animal practice in this area for the last four years.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 23 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Jones proposes guidelines to save historical buildings

Fear a 'guest' at meeting

by JOE SWICKARD

There was a real fear Monday night at the State Street Fire Station in Palatine. There was fear that the deadline of the 1957 amortization ordinance would arrive, followed closely by the wrecker's ball, and lifelong residents would somehow find themselves and their belongings tossed into the street at the bidding of the village fathers.

The ordinance was enacted 17 years ago so the central business district of the village would be gradually cleared of buildings that did not meet the present zoning codes.

However, many of these "nonconforming" buildings are people's homes — some for as long as 70 years. Three times the village board has given implementation of the ordinance a pass rather than figure out how it could be carried out.

ABOUT 25 RESIDENTS and landowners of the downtown area came to the meeting in the firehouse to see what Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones had in store for them and their property.

The firehouse setting was almost too folksy for the business of revitalizing a community. The pine paneling jerry-built conference table made it seem more suitable for a rumpled room or a square dance hall and apple bobbing emporium.

In fact, if the ordinance were to be enforced as it is now written, the firehouse itself might have to give way to "progress."

The audience was intent on the trustees as they traded points of building codes, fire limits and structural stress back and forth. Even a dissertation on the fine points of masonry walls did not drain their interest.

George Downs held his hand up for several minutes until his yellow jacket

Jones' proposal, if adopted by the village board, would save several of Palatine's older buildings that would be eliminated under an amortization ordinance that took effect July 1.

The amortization ordinance, adopted in 1957, calls for the elimination of all wood-frame downtown buildings this year and elimination of all masonry buildings with dwelling units or other nonconforming uses by 1978.

Strict enforcement of the ordinance could affect approximately 50 existing downtown structures.

JONES TOLD THE planning, building and zoning committee of the village board that he thought commercial structures with living quarters above should be permitted uses since downtown redevelopment proposals recommend this type of use. This proposal would save several buildings and eliminate the need for expensive renovations.

The amortization ordinance was originally planned to phase out uses in the downtown area that were not compatible with desired growth patterns and were fire hazards.

"I am recommending an amendment to our zoning ordinance which would permit us to vary its amortization requirements when, under specified guidelines, it appears more in the public interest to retain a given use or structure than to eliminate it," said Jones.

Guidelines for saving buildings suggested by Jones include:

- Conformance to an approved plan for the downtown redevelopment.
- Favorable impact on downtown redevelopment.
- Positive effect on health, safety and general welfare of the community.
- When the present use is more beneficial than the expected new use would be.
- Historical or architectural significance.
- Positive contribution to the downtown tax base.
- Conformance with existing fire and building codes.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Eliert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Eliert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Haisley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Haisley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go."

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Robert H. Miller named to post

Highway engineer to head public works department

Robert H. Miller has been appointed director of public works for the Village of Palatine, effective Oct. 21.

Miller, 33, of 119 W. Pickwick Rd., Arlington Heights, replaces James Bennett who resigned as director on Aug. 30. Miller's annual salary has been set at $22,500.

Miller, a registered professional engineer with the State of Illinois, will also head the village's new engineering department, according to Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig. The engineering department was established by Harwig in a major reorganization last June to handle small "people-oriented engineering problems" and consolidate all engineering reports done by consultants.

In addition to Miller, the engineering department will be staffed by a draftsman, engineering inspector and clerk. Miller and the engineering department will have offices at the Palatine Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

THE PUBLIC WORKS department will also be reorganized under Miller's direction. Harwig explained that Miller will be responsible for planning, programming, organizing and administrative direction in the public works department. The day-to-day operations of the department will be handled by a superintendent.

The superintendent will be appointed by Miller and will be offered to qualified present employees first, said Harwig.

Robert H. Miller

Miller was selected from approximately 25 applicants for the public works position. He holds a Bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Bradley University and a Master's degree in business administration from Northwestern University.

Miller is currently an area roadway engineer with the State of Illinois Highway Department. He has been with the highway department for 11 years.

He is a member of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission, Ordinance Review Committee and Jaycees. Miller's professional memberships include the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers and the Illinois Assoc. of Highway Engineers.

Small investors drawn to sale of hospital bonds

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALITY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

PALATINE VILLAGE Pres. Wendell E. Jones Monday recommended a flexible approach to the enforcement of an amortization ordinance so that the historical character of downtown Palatine can be preserved.

Fear 'guest' at meeting on buildings

was recognized from the conference table.

Downs, an attorney and owner of "a few little buildings," launched into the proposed ordinance as unconstitutional and depriving people of their holdings without due process of law.

THIS CHARGE, accented by Downs' sweeping gestures, brought an immediate chorus of reaction from the table.

Jones whistled, flapped his arms and cried, "Hey. Time out."

Robert Guss Jr., the committee's acting chairman, cut through Downs' presentation to insist, "We're not depriving people of their property."

Downs insisted: "You've been saddled with a lousy unconstitutional ordinance since 1957..."

Jones interjected that he was in college in 1957.

A woman, who identified herself as living in the target area for 70 years, asked the central question of the night: "Would you put people out who have lived there all their lives — 70 years?"

SHE WAS ASSURED by the committee and Jones this was not going to happen.

As the 70-year resident left the meeting, she turned to her friend and said, "I sat there all night just waiting to ask that question. I wanted the answer."

The fear was abated Monday night. But the question of what will the ordinance do to the people still remains.

Ahead of deadline

Wilke Road extension to be ready in 2 weeks

Paving of New Wilke Road between Golf and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows should be completed in two weeks.

Installation of base material on the roadway started Monday morning. City Engineer James Muldowney said the most time consuming phases of the project, excavation and installation of sewers, curbs, gutters and the mountable median, have been completed.

Work is ahead of the original deadline of Thanksgiving.

Permanent signal lights will not be activated for several months. Muldowney said they have been ordered, but delivery is not anticipated until June. Temporary lights are in service at New Wilke and Algonquin roads, and were installed as a joint project by the City of Rolling Meadows and Village of Arlington Heights.

Extending New Wilke as a four-lane divided road is part of a larger plan to make the route a main north-south artery through the city. The current project will complete the route from Central to Golf roads. Babbitt and Associates will extend New Wilke south of Golf Road the length of its property, to service its planned office-warehouse complex. In several years Cook County plans to extend the northern part of the road from Central to Kirchoff.

Arrow Road Construction Co., Rolling Meadows, is performing the current work under a $248,073 contract awarded in November, 1973.

GROUND WAS BROKEN last week for a $243,490 addition to the Colfax Street Fire Station. Completion is expected in mid-winter.

Ask $11,500 in donations in Crusade of Mercy drive

Rolling Meadows citizens will be asked to donate $11,500 in the Crusade of Mercy campaign for 1975, scheduled to get under way Oct. 12.

The goal was increased from last fall's $9,000 target, which the city easily surpassed with contributions of about $10,300. Donations for this year's campaign will be solicited in three steps, starting Oct. 12 with hand delivery by Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls of literature explaining the crusade and agencies it funds. Included with the literature will be return envelopes for donations.

Reminder letters will be mailed throughout the city in late October and late November.

Crusade Pres. Deane Wandersee said Monday she expects no difficulty reaching the higher goal this year. "Our Rolling Meadows residents have always supported the community chest," she said.

THE THEME OF this year's crusade will play on the theme chosen for the city's 20th anniversary next year, "Keep on Rolling." Crusade volunteers will ask residents to "Help Your Community Chest Keep on Rolling."

The suggested donation will be $12 per family.

Fund raisers will be concentrating on businessmen this year, said Mrs. Wandersee. "We are looking toward our business community to help us reach our goal," she said, adding merchants have been most cooperative in the past.

Final details of the Crusade of Mercy effort will be worked out at a board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 25 in the Bank of Rolling Meadows, 3250 Kirchoff Rd., said Mrs. Wandersee. The public is invited.

Funds contributed to the crusade help support USO, Camp Fire Girls, Family Services, Clearbrook Center, Girl Scouts of America, Northwest Mental Health, the Salvation Army Counseling Center, Salvation Army Service Unit and Boy Scouts of America.

Persons with questions can contact Mrs. Wandersee during the day hours at her office, 398-3800. Mrs. Elaine Werling is campaign chairman.

Band to perform at football game

The Rolling Meadows High School Marching Band will present its first football halftime show of the season Friday when the Mustangs meet the Arlington High School Cardinals.

The performance, titled "Chicago Is," will salute Chicago and its people. The 115-member group is led by director Richard Kennell.

The school is located at 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Halsley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Halsley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go?"

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Ahead of deadline

Wilke Road extension to be ready in 2 weeks

Paving of New Wilke Road between Golf and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows should be completed in two weeks.

Installation of base material on the roadway started Monday morning. City Engineer James Muldowney said the most time consuming phases of the project, excavation and installation of sewers, curbs, gutters and the mountable median, have been completed.

Work is ahead of the original deadline of Thanksgiving.

Permanent signal lights will not be activated for several months. Muldowney said they have been ordered, but delivery is not anticipated until June. Temporary lights are in service at New Wilke and Algonquin roads, and were installed as a joint project by the City of Rolling Meadows and Village of Arlington Heights.

Extending New Wilke as a four-lane divided road is part of a larger plan to make the route a main north-south artery through the city. The current project will complete the route from Central to Golf roads. Babbins and Associates will extend New Wilke south of Golf Road the length of its property, to service its planned office-warehouse complex. In several years Cook County plans to extend the northern part of the road from Central to Kirchoff.

Arrow Road Construction Co., Rolling Meadows, is performing the current work under a $248,073 contract awarded in November, 1973.

Residents of Georgetown warned not to use balconies

Residents of the Georgetown apartment complex in Rolling Meadows are being warned by the city not to use their balconies because of potentially "hazardous conditions."

City building inspectors are delivering letters throughout the complex recommending "tenants restrict the amount, or avoid use of balconies" until after the balconies are approved on inspection.

John P. Hennessy, acting building and zoning officer, told members of the city council's public works, building and zoning committee Monday night the balconies are "really in a terrible state of disrepair." They are "sagging," and show a "state of rotteness," said Hennessy.

The city is requiring removal of beams, duct work and decking on the balconies in the 4-year-old buildings to repair the rotting struts, said Hennessy. The management of the complex will not be permitted to replace the covering materials until after the struts are inspected and found adequate.

HENNESSY EMPHASIZED the apartment management is cooperating in the inspection and repair process. While Hennessy hopes to "see repairs done in a month," he said he does not know if it is possible to meet that schedule.

City officials said there are about 380 apartments in the complex north of Algonquin Road and east of Ill. Rt. 53.

In spring of 1973 a balcony collapsed in the nearby Three Fountains apartment complex, crashing from the third floor to a balcony below it and taking the second floor deck with it to the ground. In another incident two weeks later, a 2-year-old boy fell through floorboards in a balcony at the Algonquin Park apartments, dropping 10 feet to the ground. He was not injured, but the two incidents prompted inspection of balconies in apartments throughout the city.

Small investors drawn to sale of hospital bonds

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALLY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

WORKMEN WERE on the job Monday afternoon on the section of New Wilke Road that will link Algonquin and Golf roads. Much of the work roadway may not be opened for some time according to officials.

In downtown Palatine

'Historical buildings must be saved'

by JOANN VAN WYE

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones recommended Monday the preservation of historical buildings in downtown Palatine that are compatible with redevelopment plans.

Jones' proposal, if adopted by the village board, would save several of Palatine's older buildings that would be eliminated under an amortization ordinance that took effect July 1.

The amortization ordinance, adopted in 1957, calls for the elimination of all wood-frame downtown buildings this year and elimination of all masonry buildings with dwelling units or other nonconforming uses by 1978.

Strict enforcement of the ordinance could affect approximately 50 existing downtown structures.

JONES TOLD THE planning, building and zoning committees of the village board that he thought commercial structures with living quarters above should be permitted uses since downtown redevelopment proposals recommend this type of use. This proposal would save several buildings and eliminate the need for expensive renovations.

The amortization ordinance was originally planned to phase out uses in the downtown area that were not compatible with desired growth patterns and were fire hazards.

"I am recommending an amendment to our zoning ordinance which would permit us to vary its amortization requirements when, under specified guidelines, it appears more in the public interest to retain a given use or structure than to eliminate it," said Jones.

Guidelines for saving buildings suggested by Jones include:

- Conformance to an approved plan for the downtown redevelopment.
- Favorable impact on downtown redevelopment.
- Positive effect on health, safety and general welfare of the community.
- When the present use is more beneficial than the expected new use would be.
- Historical or architectural significance.
- Positive contribution to the downtown tax base.
- Conformance with existing fire and building codes.

Trustee Robert J. Guss, acting committee chairman, has called a committee meeting for 8 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St., to continue the discussion on implementation of the amortization ordinance.

Guss has asked that a letter be sent to members of the New Palatine Committee, which was formed to plan the downtown redevelopment, asking where its concept plan is. He also requested that copies of the amortization ordinance be made available at village hall and further amendments to the amortization ordinance be given to him in writing by the end of the week.

Money riding on city census; were you in on the counting?

The City of Rolling Meadows is asking all its residents to stand up and be counted in the special census due to end this week.

Census takers have been visiting city residences since Sept. 9, but found nobody home at some locations. A form printed in today's edition of The Herald is designed to catch any persons missed by oversight or failure to make contact. The importance of counting every citizen is financial — city revenue from motor fuel, state sales and income tax rebates is based on population.

The last Rolling Meadows census, conducted in 1970, showed a 19,178 population. If that number is increased to about 23,000, as census officials expect, the monthly state rebates will grow by $3,400, for a total yearly revenue hike of $40,800. He census is costing about $8,000.

Those missed by the census takers may clip the coupon from today's Herald and mail it to the census supervisor in care of the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Trustees approve measure 4-2

5% Hoffman utility tax will go into effect Jan. 1

by TONI GINETTI
Hoffman Estates residents will begin paying a 5 per cent utility tax Jan. 1 on telephone, gas and electric bills. The tax is expected to cost residents $20 to $30 per year.

The tax was authorized by the village board Monday night to go into effect for a two-year period beginning Jan. 1 and ending Dec. 31, 1976. The tax may be lifted before the cutoff date if enough revenue is generated to erase a substantial debt in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District which the village plans to annex.

The tax was approved in a 4 to 2 vote, despite the apparent reluctance of trustees to impose the added cost.

Only trustees Dyrie Rathman and Bruce Lind voted against the measure.

OTHER TRUSTEES approved the tax begrudgingly, saying it was the best alternative to raise funds to wipe out a deficit in the fire district. The deficit could run as high as $300,000 by the end of fiscal 1975, trustees have estimated.

Trustee William Cowin, chairman of the finance committee, said the village had no choice but to impose the tax and to "bite the bullet and take the consequences."

"I certainly don't like to be the one to propose a new tax," Cowin said, adding that the measure was a "painful decision."

The amount of revenue that the tax will raise is still unknown, Cowin said Monday, but he estimated $350,000 to $400,000 could be collected annually. Cowin cautioned the board, however, that the estimate was based on yearly receipts from only two utility companies and a "guessimate" from the third.

He added the $400,000 figure is "an optimistic forecast."

The tax will be imposed on all utilities, costing 5 cents for every dollar paid in bills. Trustees had asked if the payment could be stricken from telephone bills, but Village Atty. Edward Hofert said that would likely be ruled discriminatory by courts.

VILLAGE MGR. George Longmeyer did tell the board, however, that an Internal Revenue Service spokesman Friday said the tax could be deducted from income tax if deductions are itemized.

The vote came after several residents appeared asking that the tax be restricted to gas and electric bills and be limited to a shorter time than the two years called for.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter supported the shorter time period but told the residents the tax was the quickest short-term solution to the fire district problem, adding "our backs are financially against the wall."

Zoners expected to OK 60-acre housing project

The Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals is expected to give its approval Wednesday night to a 60-acre Roselle Road townhouse-condominium apartment project.

Plans submitted by G. S. Builders, Arlington Heights, call for 710 units, which would consist of 290 townhomes and 420 condominiums in five six-story buildings, on Roselle Road south of the Lancer Park subdivision.

Representatives of Lancer Park homeowners and other residents in the south central part of the village objected to original plans presented to zoners in June. That design called for 926 units including two 11-story high-rise buildings.

Reacting to residents' objections to the 11-story structures, builders later agreed to reduce the total number of units as well as limit building height to six stories.

CONSTRUCTION WOULD take place over five years. Phase I would contain 124 townhomes — 18 three-bedroom and 106 two-bedroom units. Also limited to townhomes, Phase II would contain 94 units of which 14 would have three bedrooms and the remaining 80 would contain two bedrooms.

The zoning hearing will begin at 8 p.m. at Schaumburg Civic Center's Lincoln Hall, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct. The zoning board's recommendation will be forwarded to the village board for action.

Schaumburg Zoning Board members have been asked by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher to relax planned-unit development guidelines for property owned by "a friend of the village."

"Guidelines are just that and not law. They were established for purposes of doing the best we can in Schaumburg," Atcher said.

His comments were directed at a petition for apartment zoning for 56 acres at Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way owned by Paul Rosenwinkel, who has farmed the land for many years.

Zoning board members recommended the village deny the zoning request because the townhouse-condominium apartment project planned for the property by R. L. Roth Associates Ltd. does not meet the 50 per cent open-space requirement in the guidelines.

Atcher pointed out that Rosenwinkel and other landowners purchased village bonds for a Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant approved when Mor-Well Builders obtained county zoning for the Timbercrest subdivision. Rosenwinkel borrowed money to pay his portion of the $113 per acre assessment, cost and "has never asked the village for a thing," Atcher added.

"I THOUGHT IT might be well to let you know that the man who owns this property has been a friend of Schaumburg," Atcher said, suggesting "if any courtesies are due, this is a man to consider."

The Roth Ltd. development planned for the Rosenwinkel property would include three 6-story condominium apartment buildings, 314 townhouse units and a 10-acre commercial area.

The development ran into legal prob-

Driver hurt as car struck by school van

A Hoffman Estates man was injured Monday afternoon when his car was struck by a Schaumburg Township School Dist. 34 van near Apple Street and Aster Lane in Hoffman Estates, police said.

Jeffrey Bobka, 19, of 173 Des Plaines Ln., was released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for hip injuries. Bobka was trapped in his car for about five minutes before Hoffman Estates firefighters were able to pry open the car door, authorities reported.

Bobka's car was struck in the side about 1:40 p.m. by a school district van driven by Milton Schlack, 58, of 220 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, police said. Schlack was charged with failure to yield right-of-way at an uncontrolled intersection.

He is scheduled to appear Oct. 25 in the Hoffman Estates branch of Circuit Court.

Some Schaumburg citizens believe freedom of speech is severely inhibited, if not actually dying quickly in their town these days as evidenced by incidents of officials' questionable behavior observed at last week's village board meeting.

Many audience members obviously bristled when Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher told them they were free to bring up "things properly discussed by this board" during the, as he calls it, "town hall portion" of the meeting.

He also instructed residents attending the meeting out of interest in zoning matters to hold their comments until those items came up for discussion, but then ruled a speaker out of order allegedly insulting Trustee Ray Kessell.

"If you don't read, then listen" was the remark made by Timbercrest resident Jim Lyons when Kessell interrupted to ask a question concerning a chart detailing proposed multi-family development in the Roselle-Schaumburg roads area prepared by the resident.

Lyons was severely reprimanded by Atcher for the "impertinent" comment but Trustee Herb Aigner got off scott free for his angry eruption at another speaker, Carol Johnson.

Aigner criticized Mrs. Johnson for constant negative statements regarding Schaumburg and moved to call a halt to her comment. His motion died for lack of a second, and that was that.

But audience members were offended by what they interpreted as a lack of control shown by Atcher and Aigner. "This is our village and I certainly think we should be able to come and have our say without ill treatment," remarked one man. "I would never bring my children to a meeting like this," said another.

Atcher to proclaim PTA member week

lems last month when the zoning board asked Roth to include the commercial area that was omitted from the original zoning request. Although the developer complied, board members later realized the 10 acres was not included in a public notice of the hearing. The zoning board's vote to recommend the village board deny the project was based on the original rezoning request.

Zoners contend that neither the original nor the revised plan conforms with the 50 per cent open space requirements contained in planned unit development guidelines. A report submitted by Village Engineer Joe Zgonina supports that belief, although developers say there is a total green area of 52.3 per cent.

Atcher, and Roth attorney Harry Smith suggested zoners take into consideration a 200-foot easement donated to the village by Rosenwinkel when his land was incorporated in 1959.

Homeowners vs. Kaufman, Broad

The Barrington Square homeowners' lawsuit against Kaufman and Broad Home Sales Inc. has been continued to Nov. 1 by Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen.

The continuance order came last week after the judge ruled in favor of a motion by K&B to dismiss as evidence in the case the company's "no contest" plea in bribery cases involving former Hoffman Estates officials.

The suit had charged that the company's plea amounted to an admission of guilt in the bribery cases. Based on that, the homeowners' suit seeks refund of part of the cost price of their homes, which they charge were inflated to pay the bribes.

WILLIAM DAVIES, attorney for the homeowners, said Thursday the suit will be revised to use the guilty pleas of the former officials as a basis for the litigation. Davies said the homeowners will have 14 days to file an amended motion in the case. The company will then have 21 days to reply.

In related litigation, the lawsuit filed by the developer against the village will be delayed until Oct. 4.

Both cases stem from the bribery case in which six former village officials were found guilty of taking bribes from K&B in exchange for quick rezoning for the Barrington Square project.

Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl Monday postponed until Oct. 4 the company's lawsuit against the village. K&B is seeking a court order forcing the village to issue building permits for further development of Barrington Square, which the village has refused to provide.

THE SUIT followed a village board action June 3 halting further work in the development pending possible rezoning of land remaining in the complex.

A counter suit against the company has been authorized by the village but has not yet been filed. It would seek compensation for alleged damages incurred by the village stemming from the 1968 bribes.

Discussions have been held concerning an out-of-court settlement of the K&B suit. Trustees have indicated terms of a possible settlement include $350,000 in cash and improvements and 12½ acres of open space land for the park district.

High schools to begin late bus runs

Late buses for students in athletic and other extracurricular programs will begin running this month in High School Dist. 211 on an experimental basis.

The experiment was authorized by the Dist. 211 Board of Education after two parents complained to the board that many students do not have a ride home after school activities. Mr. and Mrs. William Ceriell from Hanover Park said some students are forced to drop out of extracurricular activities because they do not have transportation.

Mrs. Ceriell said mothers can't always provide transportation for students because they do not have cars at home or must stay at home to watch other children in the family. She said the high school district in Elgin runs several buses for students participating in after school activities and the plan has been a success.

Board Pres. Robert Creek objected to running late buses for students saying it would cost the district money and would be difficult to schedule since activities are held at different times in the evening.

BUT BOARD member Edward Perry said he would like the district to run a late bus for students on an experimental basis to find out "how many people are going to use it, where they are living and why they are taking it."

The board authorized Supt. Richard Kolze to begin running one bus to each of the five high schools in the district to pick up students at 6:30 p.m. If the experiment is a success board members said they may decide to continue the service but would charge parents a fee.

Kolze said if two late bus routes were operated at each school it would cost the district about $58,900 a year, an increase of about 10 per cent in the district's transportation budget.

Skysailing meeting set

An introductory and informative meeting about skysailing will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Melneke Community Center, 220 E. Weatherfield Way.

The meeting will be a prelude to the Schaumburg Park District program which starts Oct. 15. Films will be shown demonstrating the sport, and instructors from the Chandel Co. of Mount Prospect will be on hand to answer any questions.

For further information call the park district office at 894-4660.

New Animal Hospital opens in Old Town area

Dr. Thomas V. Johnson, Jr. is pleased to announce the opening of Olde Towne Animal Hospital at 109 South Roselle Road in Schaumburg. The animal hospital is located just south of Schaumburg Road and across the street from the Town Square Shopping Center. This area has been designated by the Village of Schaumburg as the Old Town district. In accordance with this plan, Olde Towne Animal Hospital is modeled after the plans of a late 18th century Colonial bake shop.

Hospital hours will be 9-12 and 2:30-6 Monday through Friday, 9-1 Saturday, closed Wednesdays and Sundays. A 24 hour telephone is available at 894-2060. Doctor's hours will be by appointment. Dr. Johnson graduated from Iowa State University and interned one year at the Animal Medical Center in New York City. He has been in small animal practice in this area for the last four years.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the Purchase would cut residents' costs

Firm may be hired to set price on buying utilities

A Des Plaines engineering firm may be hired by the Mount Prospect Village Board to figure out how much it would cost the village to buy Citizens Utilities Co. equipment in northeast Mount Prospect.

The finance committee of the village board Monday night voted to recommend the village hire the firm of M&E/Alstot, March and Gullou, Inc. for $27,597.50. The village board is expected to act on the recommendation Oct. 1.

Resident dissatisfaction with service and a recent increase in Citizens' utility rates have prompted the village's consideration of a takeover of sewer and water lines in the New Town section. Citizens was granted last month a boost in minimum water rates from $4.50 a month to $3.36, and a doubling in the flat sewer charge, from $3 a month to $6.

According to a contract proposal submitted by George March of the engineering firm, the firm would determine the value of the existing water supply and sewer system and figure what other costs, such as short-range capital improvements, financing of the system, purchase and annual maintenance and operation costs, would be required. The firm also would report on the total cost needed for the purchase, whether the present rate structure would provide the needed revenue and whether the purchase is considered feasible.

VILLAGE MGR. Robert J. Eppley said that although residents of the area would pay for the cost of purchasing the system through an additional monthly charge, the rate might still be less than they are now paying to Citizens.

An estimated 2,350 households and businesses are served by Citizens in Mount Prospect. The rates they pay are considerably higher than the 75 cents per 1,000 gallons of water a month and flat $2.50 a month sewer fee households hooked into the village sewer and water system pay.

The typical 6,000 gallons of water used by a family in the Citizens Utilities service area would cost $13.46 a month including sewer charge, while the same amount of water, plus sewer service, would cost $7 a month to other Mount Prospect residents.

Eppley said the village could pay for the feasibility study with money raised through flood control bonds. Eppley said a fourth of $2 million bonds recently earned $17,000 in three months' interest.

Construction at standstill

Court ruling on condos may take up to a year

Developer J. M. Brickman may have to wait up to a year for a court decision before construction of an 80-unit condominium apartment project at the northwest corner of River and Camp McDonald roads in Mount Prospect can begin.

Robert DiLeonardi, attorney for Brickman, said Monday resolution of the court appeal "could take as long as another year."

Sixteen homeowners from northeast Mount Prospect have asked the Illinois Appellate Court to overrule a May 31 decision that prevented them from intervening in a now-settled lawsuit involving the condominium project. The appeal has brought an effective halt to construction of the project, because although Brickman is free to obtain village building permits, any construction would have to be scrapped if the residents are allowed to enter the suit and the court rules in their favor.

THE HOMEOWNERS oppose the development, saying it will not fit in with the single-family neighborhood and will cause flooding.

DiLeonardi said his client has not taken any action on a threatened countersuit against the residents for financially hurting Brickman by delaying construction. The countersuit was considered in July, but DiLeonardi said no further action has been taken since that time.

The attorney said the countersuit is Brickman's only alternative to waiting for resolution of the court appeal and therefore is still under consideration.

Although the homeowners' appeal was filed in an attempt to pressure Brickman to reduce the density of his project, DiLeonardi said his client does not intend to meet with them to discuss alternatives to the 80-unit project.

THE RESIDENTS HAD hoped to put pressure on Brickman to compromise in return for withdrawing the potentially lengthy court appeal. The project as planned would have a density of nearly 24 units per acre on the 3.3-acre site.

Density of the proposed project already has been reduced from the 113 units and one floor of commercial office space originally sought by Brickman. The village rejected plans for the project twice before Brickman sued the village. Village officials agreed to a compromise of 60 units, fearing that Brickman would win his suit and the right to build 113 units.

When the village agreed to the compromise, the residents engaged an attorney and initiated legal steps on their own to block the project.

Volunteers sought for recycling center

Youth groups are needed for volunteer weekend work at the Mount Prospect recycling center at the Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza.

Volunteers are needed from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday to stack and bundle newspapers and to oversee the glass-collection operation.

Coordination and scheduling of the volunteers is being handled by the Mount Prospect Junior's Women's Club. Groups interested in donating their time should call 382-3892.

Natalie Karney, village deputy engineer, said the center recently has experienced a drop in the volume of newspapers left for recycling. She said this has lowered the price of the newspapers bought by recycling companies, and asked that residents bring their old newspapers to the recycling center.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Haisley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Haisley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go?"

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to unite the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Small investors drawn to sale of hospital bonds

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PERSONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

Surveillance system may be checked

An electronic consultant may be hired by Wheeling-Grangeville Dist. 21 to check into a surveillance system installed in schools last year by Temptron Inc.

The school board canceled an $85,000 contract with Temptron in July, saying it appeared the company could not get the system to function properly.

The system, designed to prevent fire and vandalism in schools, was supposed to have been installed last September. School officials say that although the components are installed and are capable of functioning separately, the unit often fails when it works as a whole.

Recognizing that the district might be involved in a lawsuit with Temptron over the canceled contract, the board requested that the administration look into hiring a consultant to give a professional opinion of the system.

ONE OF THE maintenance men in the district said that some of the wiring in the system does not meet standards set by the district or agreed to in the contract.

Representatives from Temptron, the district and the bonding company, Insurance Co. of North America, discussed the controversy over the system last week.

Representatives of INA said it would not step in and take over the installation of the system because it has not been proven that Temptron broke its contract or is financially incapable of finishing the job.

Board member Jeremiah Crise said that if the wiring is defective or does not meet the contract requirements, INA would have to reevaluate its position.

Voter registration deadline Friday

The Mount Prospect village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday to handle last minute voter registration.

Friday is the last day for residents to register locally to vote in the Nov. 5 general election. Persons living in areas recently annexed to Mount Prospect must re-register in order to vote in that election.

The village hall is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Possession charge against pair dropped

Charges of illegal possession of alcohol against two Mount Prospect youths were dismissed last week in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court. The charges may be reinstated at a later date.

Appearing in court Wednesday were Philip K. Ehlen, 18, of 215 N. Stratton Ln., and Charles E. Caponi, 17, of 200 N. Stratton Ln. Police said a second charge of possession of lost or mislaid property against Ehlen was dropped by the Village of Mount Prospect.

The alleged incident occurred April 17 and involved beer purchased at the Walgreen Co. store in the Mount Prospect Plaza. A liquor violation case against the store is still pending, with a hearing held but no decision rendered.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALITY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

Burglars took an estimated $860 worth of jewelry in Friday's burglary at the Richard Van Ostrand apartment, 2026 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect police said Monday.

Originally it was reported that only old coins, valued at $30 and $14 in currency were stolen from the apartment between 6:20 and 7:45 p.m. Friday. Police said there was no sign of forced entry.

Break-in reported at John Jay School

Burglars kicked in a boarded window Sunday night at the John Jay School, 1835 Pheasant Tr., Mount Prospect police said.

Police found the broken window at 3:39 a.m. Monday. By late Monday, it was still unknown what was stolen, although one school official said several office machines and a television set appeared to be missing. Also, some change from a drawer was gone. The money had been from a vending machine.

Police said the office area of the school had been searched by the burglars.

Hospital branch needs OK by Oct. 1

Time has become a critical factor for the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Hospital to be located between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

If plans for the $11.3 million facility are not approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health by Oct. 1, hospital backers may have to reapply and could have difficulty obtaining approval.

According to a new state law, any hospital that does not have final approval by Oct. 1 will have to go through the state's entire planning process.

Plans for the satellite facility already have received preliminary approval and state officials are now reviewing final engineering and architectural plans.

NORMAN DAVIS, a consultant to the hospital, said Monday he does not expect difficulty in gaining state approval by Oct. 1. State officials would not say when they will finish reviewing plans, but one architect predicted final approval could come as early as next week.

Davis admitted, however, if approval does not come before Oct. 1, and his clients have to reapply, there could be problems in gaining state approval under the new legislation.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show the state that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

"Under the old way, when the hospital licensing board gave approval, need was not taken into consideration," Davis said. "And with this new law we might have difficulty proving the need for a hospital because of the formula that will be used by the state."

State officials have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Grangeville area because several area hospitals are not filled to capacity.

WILLIAM EWING, health planning associate for the state Comprehensive Health Planning Division, said the ramifications of the new law will not be known until a state board is appointed to interpret the legislation.

Davis said if state approval comes before Oct. 1, his clients plan to break ground for the new 228-bed hospital by late fall.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling and across from Carl Sandburg School. Property for the project includes two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $300,000.

PATRICK DEMOON, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital eventually will be annexed to Wheeling. The property cannot be annexed now because it does not adjoin Wheeling's boundaries.

Davis Monday said the facility will be called Wheeling-Grangeville Community Hospital. Hospital officials recently said the facility would be called Buffalo Grove Community Hospital.

The facility is designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Ford tells nation: no Nixon pardon 'deal'

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he pardoned Richard M. Nixon to spare the nation further turmoil and division over Watergate, and "there was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President... none whatsoever."

In a nationally broadcast news conference from the White House East Room — his second as President — Ford said there had been "very persuasive evidence" that Nixon was guilty of an impeachable offense in the Watergate cover-up and a "very real possibility" he would have been indicted on obstruction of justice and possibly 10 other criminal charges.

Although Nixon finally conceded only that he had made "mistakes and misjudgments," Ford said that Nixon's mere acceptance of the pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt.

While the news conference was dominated by Nixon's pardon and Watergate, Ford admitted frankly that the United States had intervened in Chile, but denied involvement in the actual overthrow of President Salvador Allende.

He said the U.S. had made an effort to "assist" the activities of opposition newspapers and opposition political parties in the years immediately prior to the Marxist leader's overthrow by a military junta last September. Allende and several thousand others died in the upheaval.

Ford said over a period of time there was an effort made by the Allende government "to destroy opposition media and to destroy opposition political parties, and the effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties."

"I think this is in the best interests of the people in Chile and certainly in our best interests," he said.

When asked what right the U.S. had to "destabilize" the constitutionally elected government of another country, Ford replied:

"I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically and presently such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved."

To a question regarding Nixon's precarious health, Ford said he knew little more than what he read or heard in the news media. He also indicated it played a secondary role in the controversial pardon decision.

The President conceded his decision to grant a full pardon to Nixon in advance of any legal proceedings against him had "created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he insisted he was still "absolutely convinced" the decision was correct.

Under persistent questioning about circumstances of the pardon, Ford attempted to discount widespread speculation that there were undisclosed motives in pardoning Nixon.

He said he had "no secret reason" for undertaking a study of the possibility of an early pardon for his predecessor only two days after Ford told his first news conference on Aug. 28 that it would be unwise to grant a pardon until the legal process against Nixon has run its course.

There was "no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, or between my staff and his, none whatsoever," Ford said.

Although Nixon's health was a factor, he said, "the main reason I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the

Salary hikes cited as main reason

Laseke seeks 5% increase in residential pickup fees

The Laseke Disposal Co. will ask the Village of Arlington Heights for a 5 per cent increase in residential garbage rates effective Jan. 1, and may request more money to offset the high cost of gasoline and anti-freeze.

Henry E. Laseke, president of the disposal company which is in the first year of an exclusive five-year contract with the village, Monday cited a 61-cent-an-hour hike in sanitation worker salaries as the main reason for the rate increase request.

If approved by the village board, a 5 per cent increase would raise the monthly cost of garbage service from $5.08 to $5.33.

LASEKE SAID the company had anticipated an hourly increase of 50 cents for its drivers. However the union contract also provides for an 11-cent cost of living adjustment. The salary increases take effect Oct. 1.

"We have petitioned the village to start negotiating an increase. As long as we can verify our figures, it shouldn't be a long, drawn out matter," he said.

Laseke Disposal Co. beat out SCA Services a year ago when the village's refuse contract was renegotiated. Both companies proposed the same monthly rate and 5 per cent annual increase.

Laseke's contract with the village provides for a maximum guaranteed annual increase of five per cent, based upon evidence of higher labor costs or dumping charges.

The contract also allows the company to request further rate increases to cover unusual or unanticipated costs.

"We feel we've had several of these. One is gasoline — I don't think anybody can deny that. And the other is anti-freeze. We paid $1.90 (a gallon) last year. This year it's costing us $4.50," Laseke said.

INCREASES ABOVE the 5 per cent which is guaranteed in the contract will be the subject of negotiation between the company and the village board's finance committee at an upcoming meeting.

"We want to get the contract clause clarified. Right now we interpret it in our favor. They (village trustees) may want to interpret it in the public's favor," Laseke said.

Village Health Director Frank Charlton Monday confirmed the rate increase request. He said he received a letter notifying him of the drivers' wage increases and requesting an escalation in the residential rate.

With the 61-cent hourly raise, sanitation workers will make $6.41 an hour straight pay, $9.61 an hour overtime pay, with a minimum guaranteed weekly salary of $256.41, Charlton said.

The union contract also gives drivers an additional paid holiday this year, Laseke said. The men will no longer have to work on their birthdays.

$3.4 million bond issue

Village OKs resolution for flood control project

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night adopted a resolution aimed at implementing a comprehensive flood control program with an initial non-referendum bond financing of $3.4 million.

The trustees also agreed to commit $750,000 of an anticipated $1.3 million in federal revenue-sharing funds to the first phase of the $16 million flood control program.

The bulk of the money will be used to buy land for six storm water retention basins and also to pay for engineering plans and actual construction of several smaller projects.

Included are projects at Pioneer Park, Ridge Park-Sherwood, Cypress Street, Salt Creek Watershed, Hasbrook Park, Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls and McDonald Creek.

TRUSTEE Frank Palmatier estimated the bond sale would add 11 cents to the village's tax rate. Detailed work on implementing the bond sale, including more precise estimates of both the engineering and land acquisition costs will be done by the village board's finance committee.

Phased implementation of the $16.6 million program was accepted by the board as an alternative to doing the entire program at one time, a proposal which was rejected by 67 votes in a village referendum Dec. 17.

In committing $750,000 of federal revenue-sharing funds to the program, the trustees modified an earlier board policy to devote the entire five-year allotment of federal funds to flood control. Fears that revenue sharing may be needed to cover general operating expenses in next year's budget or for other special projects led to the decision to hold back an estimated $545,000 of the federal money.

INFLATION pressures led Trustee Russell Colvin to advocate issuing up to $6 million in general obligation bonds in order to do more work on the program. "We're not doing the taxpayers any favor by delaying," Colvin said, adding that a check he has made found that construction costs are increasing at least 1 per cent a month. "If some projects get tied up for several years, the additional money would allow us to go on and do something else. I don't like to tie ourselves down. I think we'd be better off to shoot for more money without tying it to a specific project list."

However, other trustees said a reduced bond sale would be more acceptable to the taxpayers. "It will be at least one year before we could spend money on either the Ridge Park or the Pioneer Park projects and I would rather leave the decision for more bonds to a future village board," said Palmatier.

Man seized in robbery of National

A 27-year-old Des Plaines man armed with a starter pistol was apprehended by Buffalo Grove police shortly after a hold-up Monday afternoon at a National food store in Arlington Heights.

Thomas P. Harvey, 730 Beau Dr., was charged with armed robbery. Police said he had $357 and a starter pistol that used only blanks in his possession when he was arrested.

Arlington Heights police said Harvey demanded money from the service desk at the grocery store, 100 E. Rand Rd., and left with $337 in a paper bag.

Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki of Buffalo Grove police saw a car matching the radioed description of the robber's vehicle northbound on Buffalo Grove Road at 2:12 p.m., minutes after the holdup.

Gozdecki chased the car to McHenry Road near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling, where he was assisted by Patrolmen Dennis Cassidy and Jack Koenig of Wheeling police in making the arrest.

Bond for Harvey was set at $10,000. He is to appear Oct. 4 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Opinions differ greatly on Ford amnesty program

A Herald staff report

Rick Ellert of Palatine, a 27-year-old Vietnam veteran who got his leg blown off in the war, thinks that President Gerald Ford's amnesty order is fine.

"Everyone is scared about going to war. Some go over and wear the uniform, and others don't. But, no one should be prosecuted for being scared," Ellert said. "After what he did for Nixon, I think this is right."

His was one reaction Monday from area residents following the President's amnesty announcement.

Steve Haisley's favorable reaction to the conditional amnesty was like that of some veterans. "I think that amnesty is great because those who left the country thought that what they were doing was right. I have to admire somebody like that," said Haisley, 25, of Buffalo Grove.

BUT OTHER VIETNAM veterans were strongly opposed to the amnesty granted because they had served their time and thought the draft dodgers should serve theirs.

"Those draft dodgers copped out on their country and shouldn't be pardoned for leaving the country at a time when people like me served even though we weren't crazy about going over there," said Larry Lee, 27, 235 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Ken Barad, also a Vietnam veteran from Mount Prospect, favored the amnesty order because "people are bound to think differently about whether they should serve in a war or not." He added, "If (former President Richard) Nixon can be pardoned for what he did wrong, then these guys should be too," Barad said.

Louis Klopp, 86 N. Seventh St., Des Plaines, believes that "many of the draft evaders may not even return because the stigma of running will always be there. It's like with Nixon — having the crime hang over your head for the rest of your life is enough. If the former President was pardoned for a crime, then the boys who didn't serve were pardoned for a different crime."

SOME PEOPLE, like Bob Krueger of Lake Zurich, compared Nixon's pardon to the amnesty order more simply, saying, "It's just not fair. After letting Nixon go, we should let them all go?"

Many residents readily accepted the President's decision on conditional amnesty, like Jan Jarvis, 21, of Des Plaines, who said, "I don't think that conditional amnesty is any kind of solution to the problem. These guys left the country because they thought the war was senseless. If they are willing to admit that, why not just call it even, especially since Ford turned around and granted Nixon a pardon — that's really a number."

Other residents were able to condone the amnesty order by saying that forgiving draft evaders would help to united the country in a time of confusion.

"It sounds like a fair program to me. I'm in favor of anything that will help to bring the country and its people closer together again," said Richard Martin of

Small investors drawn to sale of hospital bonds

by KURT BAER

Area investors already have shown a keen interest in a $20.5 million Northwest Community Hospital bond issue, an officer with the Chicago bond house that is managing the sale said Monday.

Even though the minimum possible bond purchase is $5,000, many individual investors, including a number from the Northwest suburbs, are expected to buy the securities, said Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co.

"The response from individuals has been better than we expected," Cook said. The proposed bond issue was advertised Friday.

Cook anticipates that large institutions will buy the bonds in $500,000 to $1 million bundles. "But the return is so generous that a lot of individuals will buy them too," he said.

PEISONS INTERESTED in buying hospital bonds can call Smith, Barney in Chicago to get a preliminary statement on the bond issue. Later this week, the bond house will set firm interest rates for the securities and notify prospective buyers. However, no sales will actually be made until Oct. 17, 10 days after the village board is expected to enact a bond sale ordinance.

Five thousand dollars was picked as the increment for the bond sale, he said, because the cost of processing bonds in a lesser amount would be too high.

The bonds will be paid for by the hospital's operating revenues but they will be issued by the Village of Arlington Heights. As a result, interest on the securities will be exempt from federal income tax.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has passed an ordinance making the special bond sale possible. However it has not yet acted to actually issue the securities. Formal enactment of a bond sale ordinance is expected Oct. 7.

"The terms of the bond sale are very similar to those of other municipal bonds, or bonds from the Tollway Authority, O'Hare Airport or Chicago water department bonds. What it amounts to is that health care has become recognized as part of the public good," Cook explained.

THE MUNICIPALITY backed revenue bond sale is made possible by the 1970 Illinois Constitution and Arlington Heights' standing as a home rule municipality. Although the village's name on the bonds qualifies them as tax free, liability for the entire $20.5 million rests with the hospital. The bond issue will not affect village taxes or the village's future bonding power, officials have been told.

Exact interest rates for the hospital securities have not yet been set but short-term bonds are expected to return around 7 per cent interest, longer-term issues about 8 per cent.

Nine million dollars of the $20.5 million total will be used to pay off back debts because "there cannot be a mortgage against the hospital when the new bonds are issued," Cook said. The rest of the money will be used to pay for the continued expansion and equipping of the hospital.

Cook said 30 underwriters from across the nation are involved in the hospital bond issue and they will decide how much interest the securities will pay. On Sept. 24, the final package will be presented to the hospital's board of directors for approval. If the bond ordinance is passed as expected Oct. 7, the sale will be complete by Oct. 17.

WORKMEN WERE on the job Monday afternoon on the section of New Wilke Road that will link Algonquin and Golf roads. Much of the work roadway may not be opened for some time according to officials.

Ahead of deadline

Wilke Road extension to be ready in 2 weeks

Paving of New Wilke Road between Golf and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows should be completed in two weeks.

Installation of base material on the roadway started Monday morning. City Engineer James Muldowney said the most time consuming phases of the project, excavation and installation of sewers, curbs, gutters and the mountable median, have been completed.

Work is ahead of the original deadline of Thanksgiving.

Permanent signal lights will not be activated for several months. Muldowney said they have been ordered, but delivery is not anticipated until June. Temporary lights are in service at New Wilke and Algonquin roads, and were installed as a joint project by the City of Rolling Meadows and Village of Arlington Heights.

Extending New Wilke as a four-lane divided road is part of a larger plan to make the route a main north-south artery through the city. The current project will complete the route from Central to Golf roads.

Babbin and Associates will extend New Wilke south of Golf Road the length of its property, to service its planned office-warehouse complex. In several years Cook County plans to extend the northern part of the road from Central to Kirchoff.

Arrow Road Construction Co., Rolling Meadows, is performing the current work under a $248,073 contract awarded in November, 1973.

Presbyterian pastor 'coaches' congregation

The Rev. James Payson Martin has come to Arlington Heights to awaken a sleeping giant.

That, at least, is how he and the pastoral selection committee at First Presbyterian Church, 302 N. Dunton Ave. characterized his recent call to the church. The Rev. Mr. Martin, 48, began his duties as pastor of the 2,600-member congregation Sept. 1, coming to the church after serving an Indianapolis congregation for more than 10 years.

The Rev. Mr. Martin sees himself as the "coach" of the congregation, encouraging members to live their faith throughout the week. "I like to emphasize a personal commitment to Jesus Christ, regular worship, daily personal devotion, participation in small discussion groups and finding a place of service in the community," he said.

HE SAID HE was intrigued by his call to the Arlington Heights congregation because of the town's population.

Rev. James Payson Martin

"The Arlington Heights area is a highly business and professional area," he said, adding that the people touch the lives of many others across the country through their work and travel. "Our type of people could be the church in action out in the world," he said.

Describing himself as "people-oriented," The Rev. Mr. Martin has served congregations on Minneapolis, Bismarck, N.D., Jackson, Mich., and Indianapolis since his ministry began in 1950. Born in Gary, Ind., he grew up in Bloomington, and attended schools in Tennessee and Chicago. He and his wife, Dottie have three children, Bill, 22; Linda, 20; and Cindy, 14.

Getting to know his congregation is The Rev. Mr. Martin's first goal. He hopes to initiate a series of parish parties so that he can spend an evening with 25 parishioners at a time. In a church that he describes as active, averaging 900 worshippers each Sunday, he is aided by associate pastors, James Eby and Leon Haring.

But The Rev. Mr. Martin seems eager to delve into his job of awakening the sleeping giant at the corner of Dunton and Eastman. "We all need this spiritual awakening, including the preacher," he said.

Surveillance system may be checked

An electronic consultant may be hired by Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to check into a surveillance system installed in schools last year by Tempron Inc.

The school board canceled an $85,000 contract with Tempron in July, saying it appeared the company could not get the system to function properly.

The system, designed to prevent fire and vandalism in schools, was supposed to have been installed last September. School officials say that although the components are installed and are capable of functioning separately, the unit often fails when it works as a whole. Recognizing that the district might be involved in a lawsuit with Tempron over the canceled contract, the board requested that the administration look into hiring a consultant to give a professional opinion of the system.

ONE OF THE maintenance men in the district said that some of the wiring in the system does not meet standards set by the district or agreed to in the contract.

Representatives from Tempron, the district and the bonding company, Insurance Co. of North America, discussed the controversy over the system last week.

Representatives of INA said it would not step in and take over the installation of the system because it has not been proven that Tempron broke its contract or is financially incapable of finishing the job.

Board member Jeremiah Crise said that if the wiring is defective or does not meet the contract requirements, INA would have to reevaluate its position.

At meeting tonight

Finance panel to hear how 2 parks make money

Representatives from two area park districts will be present at the Arlington Heights Park and Recreation Financial Plan Committee meeting tonight to discuss with committee members possible solutions to the district's financial troubles.

The meeting will be at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave., at 8 p.m.

Richard Johns, director for the Glenview Park District, will discuss his district's use of money-making facilities to financially support the expenses of the district.

The Glenview Park District has a golf course, an indoor tennis court complex, and an indoor ice rink that generates money for the district. The park and recreational financial plan committee has proposed the construction and operation of such structures as a possible solution for the Arlington Park District's financial troubles.

Thomas Carlson, former director of the Evanston Park District Department, also will present information to committee members on how Evanston Park District has successfully been able to operate as a part of the city government.

The Arlington Heights Park District has traced its financial problems to a leveling off of the tax base and a revenue flow that has not been able to match the steep and sudden increase in the costs of running and maintaining district programs and facilities.

The committee has also suggested a possible contracting of services between the village and the park district, or a merger between the two, as another possible solution to the district's financial trouble.

Or face reapplication process

Plans for hospital branch must get state OK by Oct. 1

Time has become a critical factor for the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Hospital to be located between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

If plans for the $11.3 million facility are not approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health by Oct. 1, hospital backers may have to reapply and could have difficulty obtaining approval.

According to a new state law, any hospital that does not have final approval by Oct. 1 will have to go through the state's entire planning process.

Plans for the satellite facility already have received preliminary approval and state officials are now reviewing final engineering and architectural plans.

NORMAN DAVIS, a consultant to the hospital, said Monday he does not expect difficulty in gaining state approval by Oct. 1. State officials would not say when they will finish reviewing plans, but one architect predicted final approval could come as early as next week.

Davis admitted, however, if approval does not come before Oct. 1, and his clients have to reapply, there could be problems in gaining state approval under the new legislation.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show the state that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

"Under the old way, when the hospital licensing board gave approval, need was not taken into consideration," Davis said. "And with this new law we might have difficulty proving the need for a hospital because of the formula that will be used by the state."

State officials have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area because several area hospitals are not filled to capacity.

WILLIAM EWING, health planning associate for the state Comprehensive Health Planning Division, said the ramifications of the new law will not be known until a state board is appointed to interpret the legislation.

Village wins award for fiscal work

The Village of Arlington Heights is one of three municipalities in Illinois to receive an award for fiscal accountability from the national association of municipal finance officers.

The award, presented Monday night to Finance Director Kenneth M. Bonder, also was presented this year to Evanston and Decatur.

A total of 43 cities in the nation were singled out by the association for recognition.

Davis said if state approval comes before Oct. 1, his clients plan to break ground for the new 228-bed hospital by late fall.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling and across from Carl Sandburg School. Property for the project includes two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $500,000.

PATRICK DEMOON, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital eventually will be annexed to Wheeling. The property cannot be annexed now because it does not adjoin Wheeling's boundaries.

Davis Monday said the facility will be called Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Community Hospital. Hospital officials recently said the facility would be called Buffalo Grove Community Hospital.

The facility is designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Scout registration, open house Thursday

Boy Scout Troop 36 of Prospect Heights will hold an open house and registration for new and old scout members at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The open house will be at the Prospect Heights Community Church at Willow and Elmhurst roads for residents of Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

PTA notes

The annual "Parents' Night" at Greenbrier School will be Thursday at the school, 2330 N. Verde Ave.

A bake sale will highlight the evening, starting at 7:30 p.m. Parents also will be able to meet with their child's teacher and tour classrooms.

The Rand Junior High School PTA will hold its first meeting of the school year at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the school, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Teachers at the meeting will explain their approach to team teaching. A bake sale also will be held.

Rock garden looted

Thieves looted a rock garden in Arlington Heights Sunday night, according to police reports.

Mrs. Josephine Seiler, 101 N. Rammer Ave., told police two bonsai trees, a large sea shell and an 18-inch tall oriental figure were taken from her backyard rock garden sometime Sunday night.

Beef dinner Sunday at St. Peter's

The Couples Club of St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St., Arlington Heights, will sponsor the annual beef dinner Sept. 22 from noon to 4 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Proceeds from the family-style dinner will go to various worthy projects. Tickets are $3 for adults, and $1 for children from six to 12 years old. They are available from Chairman Tom Vidrik, or at the door.

Bell at St. Peter's damaged by vandals

Vandals struck St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, Sunday night, damaging the church bell.

According to police reports, the bell, weighing an estimated 1,000 pounds, was knocked over by a sledge hammer wielding vandal who smashed the cast iron brackets supporting it.

There was no estimate of damage.
